NOBLES OF THE MYSTIC SHRINE CAPTURE FORT WAYNE

MIZPAH TEMPLE'S MARDI GRAS IS ON

Weather Now the Only Uncertain Note in Two Days' Program of Merry Festivities.

ZENOBIA TEMPLE, TOLEDO, FIRST TO ARRIVE

Greeted by the symbolic slogan, "Glad-2-C-U" and welcomed by flaming banners and gay-hued decorations that supplemented the cordial expression of the host of the occasion, members of the Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine from over a wide territory are flocking into the oasis of Fort Wayne today for the mardi gras and ceremonial session of Mizpah temple.

Preparations that represent weeks of labor and the expenditure of vast sums of money by the Fort Wayne Shriners are entirely complete for the big event. All is in readiness for the spectacular pageant, for the Shriners' ball, the competitive patrol drills, the reception to the visiting ladies, the Shriners' parade, the ceremonial session and the great banquet. Distinguished members of the imperial council are here to participate in the festive occasion. Only the weather remains as the uncertain note in the program. With fair skies nothing can forestall the triumph of the big carnival of merriment. Committees have arranged for changes in the program, if made absolutely necessary by bad weather, but they are holding off until the last moment before deviating from the original program.

Toledo First to Arrive.

Since Tuesday morning members of the Mystic Shrine have been dropping into the city by individuals and by twos and threes from over a wide scope of territory. Today began the coming of the temples by organizations.

Zenobia temple, of Toledo, was the first of the out-of-town contingent to arrive as a body. It reached the city at 11:30 o'clock in a special train over the Wabash with eighty men and its famous patrol of thirty-three members. J. C. Newton is captain of the patrol, with Otto Sanzenbacher as first lieutenant and J. D. Hurlbut as second lieutenant. Met at the Wabash station by the uniformed patrol of Mizpah temple in command of Capt. Guy M. Mahurin, with a band, the visitors were escorted to the Anthony hotel headquarters shortly before the noon hour.

Others Are Arriving.

The Hammond Shriners were the next organization to arrive, coming in over the Nickel Plate at 3:05 o'clock this afternoon. Murat temple, of Indianapolis, with its band and its patrol, is due at 5 o'clock in special cars over the interurban line, and a special train over the Grand Rapids and Indiana road at the same hour will bring the temples from Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo.

Upon patrol of Mizpah temple developed escort duty of meeting arriving delegations, and they were early at the work this morning. Guy Mahurin is captain of the patrol, with E. H. Kilbourne as first sergeant and H. P. Moses as second sergeant. The membership includes C. E. Perry, Ward Wilt, S. W. Newell, Mont Beaver, Harry Jones, Tom Snook, A. E. Kover, Bert Mills, Charles Gumpper, Harry Fletcher, Guy Gilbert, J. W. Authenrith, G. R. Courter, George Waldschmidt, Fred Ash, J. M. Kuhns, Ed Miller, J. R. Morrow, J. G. Mason, Robert Koerber.

Attired in rich zouave uniforms of purple and yellow, wearing the traditional fez and carrying side arms, the patrol devoted the day to meeting arriving trains and escorting the Shriners to headquarters.

Interest in Big Parade.

Popular public interest during the mardi gras naturally centers in the big spectacular parade scheduled for this evening if the weather man will conduct himself in a manner to make the show possible. Ready and in waiting at the doors of the old street car barns at Glasgow avenue and East Washington street are the score of magnificent floats which were transported from the imperial council meeting at New Orleans to Fort Wayne for this occasion.

They have been erected and reburnished under the personal direction of Col. F. B. Pine, of Mobile, Ala., who was in charge of the pageant at New Orleans, and who says the Fort Wayne parade will be in all respects equal to that famous spectacle. Colonel Pine has given a lifetime to the work and is recognized as the foremost American in his line. The floats are the most beautiful tableaux ever exhibited in the middle west, and will be manned by a big company of Shriners, while scores of others will bear flaming torches and still others will shoot fireworks along the line of march.

Ball Will Be Brilliant.

The Shrine ball at Minuet hall this evening promises to be a social event of unusual brilliance. An orchestra of twenty-five pieces under the direction of Prof. F. J. Reincke will play for the dance program, which begins at 10 o'clock. The ladies will be conveyed from the hotel in automobiles to the reviewing stand to watch the parade, thence back to the hotel and later to the ballroom.

Fred A. Hines, imperial potentate of the Mystic Shrine, will lead the grand march with Mrs. E. H. Merritt, wife of the illustrious potentate of Mizpah temple. Other imperial officers with their ladies will follow in the following order: E. H. Merritt, illustrious potentate; John W. Boyle, emeriti member of the imperial council with all the rights and privileges of a past imperial potentate; J. F. Treat, deputy imperial potentate W. J. Cunningham, imperial chief rabban; W. W. Irwin, imperial assistant rabban; W. S. Brown, imperial treasurer; O. W. Burdatts, imperial recorder; William Perrett, imperial oriental guide; J. P. Stevens, imperial first ceremonial master; J. H. Lewis, imperial second ceremonial master; L. A. Cornelius, imperial marshal; E. J. Jacoby, imperial captain of the guard; James McCandless, imperial outer guard; George McCandless, emeriti member. In line behind them will follow other nobles with their ladies.

At least four patrols will be entered in the competitive drills for prizes tomorrow morning—Indianapolis, Toledo, Grand Rapids and Hammond. The event is scheduled for the baseball park, and in the event of rain will be held at Princess rink.

Has Wide Jurisdiction.

Hon. Fred A. Hines, of Los Angeles, Cal., who as the imperial potentate of the Mystic Shrine for North America, is the chief guest of honor of Mizpah temple in the present function, has a jurisdiction that extends from St. Johns', New Brunswick, to Honolulu, and from the city of Mexico to British Columbia. There are 123 temples of the Shrine, and the membership is now at its highest mark—160,000 nobles.

Reaching Fort Wayne soon after Imperial Potentate Hines was John F. Treat, of Fargo, N. D., the deputy imperial potentate, and still other members of the imperial council arrived today. It is declared to be altogether the most eminent company of Mystic Shriners ever assembled outside an imperial council session, and the arriving guests are invariably prompt with an expression of commendation for the arrangements which Mizpah temple has made for the event.

Rush for the Register.

Registration of visitors started off briskly from the moment the official headquarters were opened yesterday in

PARKHURST SAYS HE DID NOT LEAVE A FAMILY

Cincinnati Woman Thought He Might Be Her Lost Husband.

Mrs. Grace Coyle, 1117 Main street, Cincinnati, has written Chief Ben Elliott, of the police department, giving him a description of a husband who abandoned her and their child several years ago, thinking that F. A. Parkhurst, the Kingsland wreck victim at St. Joseph's hospital, might be the man.

To Detective Sergeant Hall Mr. Parkhurst denied that he is the man and says he never had a wife in Cincinnati and that the charge that he left one is untrue. The letter says that he originally came from Knoxville, but Parkhurst alleges his old home is in Nashville.

The strange part of the whole affair is that the man in the hospital has a scar under his left jaw and another over his right eye, both of which are described in the letter. His age and general appearance tally with the description sent by the Cincinnati woman.

Mrs. Coyle says she read of the Kingsland wreck and noted the name of F. A. Parkhurst, which was the name of her former husband. She started by saying that she had a very near relative of the name and for that reason was making the inquiry, but along in the letter she says the man was her husband and she had not heard from him for a long time and that he ran away with another woman.

There was no indication in the letter that Mrs. Coyle wants the police to take a hand in the case and she is evidently prompted by curiosity as the child is dead and she has married again. More than to question Parkhurst the police took no action. His condition would not admit of any very close questioning. Parkhurst has a wife and two children at Bluffton.

PARADE IS POSTPONED

Late this afternoon Chairman E. W. Puckett, of the committee on arrangements announced that owing to the rain the mardi gras parade scheduled for this evening had been postponed until tomorrow evening. There will be no other change in today's program. The Shriners' ball will be held this evening as announced.

Thursday morning at 10 o'clock the patrol drills will be held at Princess rink, instead of at the baseball park. The parade of the Shriners will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the ceremonial session will follow at 3 o'clock, concluding at 7 o'clock.

Then will come the mardi gras parade at 7:30 o'clock, over the line of march announced for this evening. The banquet at the Scottish Rite Cathedral will be held Thursday evening at 9:30 o'clock.

FORGER AT WORK IN OTHER TOWNS

Three Checks on Local Bank Came Here from Evansville.

PASSED A CHECK FIVE YEARS AGO

Was Captured Through the Aid of a Local Furniture Firm.

That the forger who was working here several weeks ago under the name of Henry Krause spent part of his time gathering up blank checks is shown by the fact that today three forgeries turned up here in the course of business. These were passed on merchants at Evansville.

The transactions represented $160 and the paper was identical with the checks on the First National bank of Hammond that were worked off on the merchants here. The same stamp was used to give the checks the appearance of having been certified and the names and the writing were the same in each instance.

All of the paper was sent back to Evansville to the banks that had sent them out for collection and in each instance there were the usual fees for protest.

ell Down in One Place.

Mr. Krause fell down in at least one place and the Rosenthal establishment is probably a few dollars to the good and has one more skirt in stock than it would have had if a clerk in the store had fallen for the check offered her.

When he was here on his last trip he bought a suitcase of Mr. Graeter and gave him a check for $25. It was apparently certified and was accepted. Later it was returned and proved worthless.

Mr. Graeter determined to catch the man if possible so he had a fac-simile of the check made and printed it on a postal card with a description of the man, who has some fingers missing from one of his hands. This reached the marshal in an Ohio town, who showed it to his brother, a furniture dealer.

A few minutes later the man walked in and presented the check. The marshal was called in, pretended to be the proprietor, accepted the check and then arrested the man, who got five years. Local merchants have determined to get him again and will send out his description and offer a reward for his apprehension.

She says that on the same night that the checks were passed in the other stores a man answering the description of the forger walked in and looked at a skirt. It was offered at $10 and he presented a check. The clerk said she could not use it and stated she would show it to the manager, Charles Snowberger.

This evidently alarmed the fellow and he took the check back and said he would call his wife, who was waiting outside. When the clerk and the manager went to look for him he was gone.

Has Done Time.

On the day these checks were passed W. F. Graeter, of the Indiana Furniture company, saw the fellow on the street. He recognized him by the fact that he bought one of his checks about five years ago. He knew the man had been sent to the penitentiary to serve time and thought he was all right and did not warn the police.

A REIGN OF TERROR WAS PLANNED FOR LOS ANGELES

Five Hundred Pounds of Dynamite Purchased for Campaign.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 5.—"The net thrown out by the authorities appears to be closing in rapidly on the dynamiters of the Los Angeles Times.

"It is certain that the dynamite, which we know was secured at Giant, was taken to Los Angeles and that it was the same dynamite used in the destruction of the Times building and in the bombs found at the Zeehandelear and Otis residences."

This statement was made by Attorney Rogers, of Los Angeles, who is in charge of the manhunt.

Have Many in Jail.

"We have ordered arrests," said Mr. Rogers, "and we have men now in jail at several points, both between here and Los Angeles and east of San Francisco."

He refused to divulge the names of the prisoners or the places where they are held.

"A reign of terror was planned for Los Angeles," Rogers asserted. "There were at least six jobs intended to be carried out with the 500 pounds of dynamite secured at Giant."

It is estimated that only 200 pounds of the total amount has been accounted for.

INDICTED SOLONS IN FEAR OF CROSS EXAMINATION

Browne and Broderick Get Quiz Put Off Day for Decision.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—State Senator "Big John" Broderick and Representative Lee O'Neil Browne, the democratic minority leader, were both called to the witness stand at the Lorimer investigation today, but their desire to avoid cross-examination resulted in postponing their testimony until tomorrow.

Broderick, who is charged by State Senator Hoistlaw with giving him a bribe of $2,500 for his Lorimer vote, preceded Browne in the witness chair.

Browne is still under indictment at Springfield although he was acquitted of the bribery charge brought in Chicago.

Representative Henry S. Terrell, of Colchester, did not vote for Mr. Lorimer. He had been told that votes were being bought, he said, and approached Representative Griffin out of curiosity to learn the market price of representatives.

"I asked Griffin, who had asked me if I could vote for Lorimer, what there was in it for me," said the witness. "He replied that there was at least $1,000 in it. This was the night before the election."

INDIANA TRACTION WRECK.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 5.—Twelve persons were injured today when an outbound traction car on the Logansport division of the Indiana Union Traction company turned over in making a curve near Broad Ripple, a suburb of Indianapolis. Wet rails and the failure of the emergency brakes to work are given as the causes of the wreck. None of the passengers was seriously injured.

LIFE IS SNUFFED OUT IN A FLASH

George Thomas Meets Instant Death by Electrocution.

WIRE SEARED INTO HIS LIFELESS FORM

Entangled as He Fell, Victim Lay Some Time With Clothes Afire.

George Thomas, 40 years of age, residing in the eastern part of the city and employed as a sidewalk builder by Contractor Oscar F. Menefee, met instant death by electrocution at Broadway and Home avenue at 8 o'clock this morning.

The fatal accident occurred when in attempting to remove a broken and dangling wire of the Home Telephone company out of the way of the workmen Thomas brought it in contact with one of the primary lighting wires of the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction company, carrying a current of 2,200 volts.

Body Horribly Burned.

Thomas fell entangled in the wire which had brought instant death to him, and for nearly half an hour he lay in that position, the deadly wire searing deeply into his lifeless body at several points, with his clothing burning, before implements could be procured with which to break the fatal electrical connection. For a considerable distance about the spot the damp earth was heavily charged with the deadly current, and this fact made it dangerous to attempt to approach the body of the unfortunate victim. Police and spectators alike stood about powerless until the arrival of linemen with appliances before the body could be rescued and the smoldering fire in the man's clothing extinguished.

The unfortunate man came to Fort Wayne six years ago from Auburn. He is survived by his widow and a number of children.

How Accident Occurred.

Thomas, with other employes of the Menefee company, were engaged in the construction of a cement sidewalk along the east side of Broadway immediately south of Home avenue.

WATER SUPPLY SHUT OFF FROM PART OF CITY

Pile Driven Through One of Mains—The City Hall Notes.

From 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 1 o'clock this morning the water supply was shut off from the southwestern portion of the city by reason of the fact that the Pennsylvania crew at Fairfield avenue, drove a big pile through one of the mains in getting ready for track elevation.

Water shot out from the broken pipe and stopped operations at the crossing until the city employes could close the valve that controlled that portion of the city in the immediate vicinity. The leak was patched up after several hours of hard work and fortunately no bad results followed the accident.

Committee is Satisfied.

The city council committee on track elevation held a meeting last night with the board of public works in which the vacation of streets asked by the Pennsylvania company was canvassed and the members were satisfied after the situation had been thoroughly explained to them.

They think that Webster street should be seventy feet wide when it is opened under the tracks and will not insist upon the separation of grade at the Wabash tracks and Fairfield avenue for the present. The plans at Grand street were also agreed to and it is possible a contract will be presented for ratification at the next council meeting.

Will Quarantine Cases.

Under a rule adopted by the board of public health infantile paralysis will be quarantined in Fort Wayne. The Fort Wayne Medical society at a meeting last night endorsed the step and notice has been sent to all of the physicians of the city. The society also went on record as endorsing the health department for its activity and good work in handling contagious diseases.

Board Takes Action.

The board of public works has awarded contracts to the Moellering Construction company for building a sewer and paving two small alleys. Fred Fuelling was given the contract for building a sewer and the Barber Asphalt company signed up for paving Home avenue. The board specified that the work must be completed by December 1. A resolution vacating a strip off Grand street, twenty-eight feet in width, in accordance with the original track elevation agreement, was adopted.

MONARCHY REELS IN REVOLUTION

Uprising in Portugal is Now Fully Confirmed and Young King is Without a Throne.

PALACE TROOPS JOIN WITH THE PEOPLE

Latest cable advices officially confirm that Portugal is swept by a revolution of far-reaching effect, threatening the safety of the royal family and the existence of the monarchy. The royal palace at Lisbon has been under bombardment from warships, which have made common cause with the revolutionists. The extent of the destruction and loss of life is not yet known owing to the rigorous censorship and the interruption of telegraphic communication.

King Manuel apparently has fled from the capital and sought refuge on board a warship, either Brazilian or British. Early advices today to the French foreign office stated that the king was still at the palace last night, resisting the advance of the revolutionists. Later the Brazilian legation at Paris was advised that the king had taken refuge on board the Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo now at Lisbon in connection with the visit of President-elect Fonseca, of Brazil. British warships have been rushed from Gibraltar to the scene of disorder and the Paris Tempos, a governmental paper, is informed that the king has gone aboard one of the British ships. At Rome grave fear is felt that the royal family will be imprisoned and possibly meet a tragic fate similar to that of King Carlos.

Detailed reports from Paris coming through round about channels, assert that after desperate fighting in the streets of Lisbon the royal standard was torn down and the flag of the republic raised over the royal palace.

The British government is said to be considering intervention in behalf of the safety of the members of the royal family.

A report received at Pisa, Italy, is that troops loyal to the king were still successfully defending the royal palace at three o'clock this morning.

Lisbon, Oct. 5.—At 8 o'clock this morning troops faithful to the government who had assembled in the Place Dom Pedro, made common cause with the revolutionists and returned to their barracks.

A multitude in the streets applauded the desertion, crying, "Long live the republic."

FIGHTING CONTINUES.

Madrid, Oct. 5.—Advices received from Lisbon state:

"The combat continues in the streets.

"Queen Mother Amelia has fled to the royal palace at Cintra, the summer residence of Queen Dowager Maria Pia, seventeen miles from Lisbon.

"King Manuel has found refuge on a warship."

NEAR TWO SCORE PERISH IN WRECK

Kingsland Trolley Car Disaster Has Repetition on Electric Line at Staunton, Ill.

ORDERS IGNORED, CRASHED ON A CURVE

Staunton, Ill., Oct. 5.—With the inquest over the bodies of the Illinois traction wreck victims at Carlinville under the direction of Coroner Dorris Karnes, of Macoupin county, and the preliminary investigation by the railroad and warehouse commissioners here today, the responsibility for the disaster, which snuffed out the lives of thirty-six passengers and injured thirty-one others at Dickerson curve, two miles and a half north of here yesterday afternoon, may be fixed.

That Motorman John Liermann, of local No. 14, northbound, ran wild despite orders to meet limited second section of No. 73, southbound, at Wall, is the charge made by Dispatcher Louis Tebbs, of Staunton. On the strength of his accusation the police are searching for Liermann, who is said to have leaped from his car just before the crash and disappeared. Manager H. E. Chubbuck, of the Illinois traction system, and his assistants, remained at the scene of the wreck until the last injured person had been properly cared for and the last of the dead bodies had been recovered. The task of removing debris consumed the greater part of the night and it is expected that traffic will be resumed today.

The collision occurred between local train No. 14, northbound, and an excursion train, No. 73, headed toward St. Louis and loaded with passengers on their way to view the parade of the Veiled Prophets at St. Louis.

Orders Disregarded.

The accident, according to present information, was due entirely to the disregard of orders by the crew of local No. 14, which was in charge of M. A. Leonard, conductor, and John Lierman, of Staunton, the motorman.

Train No. 14 had orders to pass train 73 at Staunton. The latter train was running in two sections and the orders given to No. 14 were explicit that it should pass both sections of the southbound train at Staunton. The first section of No. 73 had passed when the crew of No. 14 pulled out onto the main track, heedless of the second section, and started north. At a sharp turn in the road called Dickerson's curve, which is two miles north of this place, the trains came together in a splintering crash.

Curve at Bottom of Declines.

Dickerson's curve is a sharp bend in the road and is at the bottom of a decline both from the north and from the south. Train No. 14 and the second section of No. 73 were both on the down grade and moving at a speed of forty miles an hour when they met. The collision occurred right at the bottom of the double incline and at the sharpest part of the curve. The cars were so close that it was impossible for either of them to stop or slow down or able to do nothing except set the brakes and jump for their lives.

The crew of No. 14 and the crew of No. 73, which was composed of W. V. Duncan, conductor, and E. J. Young, of Springfield, Ill., leaped for their lives as soon as they saw that a collision was inevitable and all four men escaped without serious injury. They were badly shaken up but were able to lend assistance to the injured an instant later.

None of the passengers had a chance for life, as the crash between the cars followed immediately the cries of warning issued by the conductors and motormen as they jumped from the trains.

Car Men Arrested.

Motorman Liermann and Conductor Leonard, in charge of train No. 14, were arrested this morning and were held for the coroner's inquest. Liermann made no effort to escape the officers and offered no resistance when asked to accompany them. Conductor Leonard also went with the officers without trouble. He suffered a severe scalp wound and had been treated by a local physician and taken to his home. The men were not placed in jail, but were taken to the Kennedy house where, guarded by an officer, they were held until taken to Carlinville later this morning.

Despite the fact that a heavy rain set in at daylight, crowds remained around the morgue waiting a chance to view the bodies.

One of the dead women at Carlinville was identified today as Mrs. F. W. Reed, Peoria, Ill.

A ring with "F. W. R." engraved on it, was on one of her fingers.

Motorman Is to Blame.

"Motorman Liermann, of the northbound car, admits he alone is responsible for the wreck yesterday," said H. E. Chubbuck, vice president and general manager of the Illinois traction system, who investigated the wreck.

Liermann was noted for his carefulness and there seems to be no reason for his absentmindedness by overrunning a meeting point at Wall's siding.

"Both train orders were absolutely clear to the minutest detail, showing the dispatching to be flawless.

James W. Miller, one of the victims of the wreck, was for nine years an Iowa state mine inspector, from May, 1884 to 1902.

cation issued today says:

"It is confirmed by information, private but sure, that an important revolution has broken out in Lisbon; that bombardment of the city has commenced and that on Tuesday night King Manuel was still in the royal palace, resisting the revolutionists."

Portugal since yesterday has been isolated from the rest of the world, and circuitous reports declare that the country is in the throes of a violent revolution. All of the Portuguese navy and a part of the army are reported to have deserted the monarchy and to have cast their lot with the revolutionists.

Warships Shell Palace.

The Portuguese warships shelled the royal palace, while land forces, after desperate fighting in the streets, dragged down the royal standard and raised the banner of the republic.

King Manuel is said to be a prisoner in the palace.

Though a revolution, peaceful or violent, was not expected, it is generally believed that the immediate cause was the assassination in the capital of Prof. Bombarda, the republican deputy and chief of the Liberal league, by a lieutenant of the army. So intense was the feeling against the throne that this incident, comparatively trivial in itself, was sufficient to start the outbreak.

Portugal following the example of Spain, has been imbued in recent years with a strong anti-clerical sentiment and the governmental program included a revision of the statutes of the religious orders.

Looked Upon Familiar Scenes.

President-elect Fonseca, of Brazil, recently arrived at Lisbon and last night a grand banquet was to have been given him by King Manuel. Accordingly the Brazilian must have been witness of scenes similar to those of 1889 in Brazil, when the Brazilian empire was overthrown.

Evidences of the activity of those who aimed at the throne have been found frequently of late. On Sept. 20 the police raided a bomb factory and arrested ten persons. This action was said to have followed the discovery of a widespread anti-monarchial plot with ramifications throughout the kingdom.

El Imparcial, an official organ at that time declared the government was prepared to crush mercilessly the revolt.

Many Arrests Made.

Following the discovery of the bomb factories there have been arrests made daily among medical students who were members of a secret revolutionary society with branches in the Portugal medical school and the University of Coimbra.

The government's action against the clericals also complicated the situation. Following the expulsion of the Jesuits from the monastery Aldea Ponte many Spanish priests known as "Mariannos," who had settled in various parts of the country establishing convents and monasteries, were ordered out of the kingdom and their establishments closed by authority of the law of 1902, which permitted of the establishment of religious orders only for charitable and educational purposes.

The Portuguese unrest which had gradually increased since the discovery of plots to overthrow the monarchy and set up a military dictatorship or a republic was aggravated by several strikes among the cork cutters and coopers.

Great Strike Inaugurated.

More than 20,000 men stopped work at Barreiro and rioting followed. The strikers seized railroad trains and threw out of the freight cars and burned thousands of bales of cork.

Municipal guards, regiments of infantry and cavalry were dispatched to Barreiro and a collision between the strikers and soldiers ensued. Fifty strikers were injured.

The grievance of the cork cutters was the exportation of uncut cork which the workmen claimed should be treated in Portugal. The coopers demanded a cessation of the importation of foreign ready-made barrels.

The government recognized that the strikers were taking a revolutionary turn and to appease the strikers, discontinued the exportation of uncut cork and placed prohibitive duties upon foreign barrels imported. This caused diplomatic protests on the part of the United States and Great Britain, to which countries uncut cork has been exported, and from France and Germany, whose merchants had bought enormous quantities of wine in Portugal which could not be exported because of a lack of barrels.

Republican Sentiment Grows.

The republican movement, which found inspiration in the assassination of King Carlos and the crown prince on February 1, 1908, grew in strength steadily and the elections of last August added materially to the republican membership in the chamber where the republican vote had been trebled during the last three years. In districts where the republicans failed of carrying the election their vote showed a marked increase.

When the new cortes assembled the government saw the danger of the liberal cabinet being overthrown and on Sept. 26 parliament was adjourned until Dec. 12 in order to keep absolute power in the hands of the cabinet and tide over a troublesome period, but more particularly because the government realized that its majority was too small to withstand an attack from the coalition forces.

Great Ovation for Fonseca.

President-elect Fonseca, of Brazil, received a great ovation when he arrived at Lisbon. A regiment of infantry escorted him to Belem palace from the balcony of which he addressed a great crowd, felicitating the Portuguese people as the "source from which sprang fatherland and the Brazilian nation."

The crowd cried, "Long live the republic of Brazil."

On Sunday last King Manuel officially visited Senor Fonseca on the Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo. According to advices received at the Brazilian legation here today, King Manuel has now taken refuge on this Brazilian warship. The whole liberal press, including the republican element, applauded the government's action in expelling the friars and confiscating the convents and monasteries and other valuable properties.

Warned the Monarch.

Dr. Jose de Alpoim, the leader of the dissident progressists and former minister of justice and worship, who told the king that if he enforced reforms, both political and financial, on the same lines as had Premier Canalejas of Spain, the monarchy was doomed and a republic assured, declares that his majesty answered that he would do his best to rule the country in the liberal spirit. Dr. Alpoim added:

"The king is wise and of a humane disposition, but he is badly advised by the clerical clique at the palace."

The government has been aware that large stores of arms, ammunition and bombs were kept in Lisbon and the other chief towns of the country, but all efforts to discover the hiding places were fruitless.

The greater part of the army and navy was avowedly republican and a great number of liberals had declared that if a military cabinet was formed that they would join the ranks of the republicans.

Cabinet Was Reactionary.

Notwithstanding the liberal government promises of reforms and the recent decree of amnesty toward the press offenders, as well as the efforts to settle the clerical problems, the republicans claimed that the progressists' cabinet really was reactionary and allied with the court party, which in turn, it was insisted, was dominated by clerical influences. The king's creation of additional peers was regarded as a reactionary move. Alfonso Costa, the republican deputy, who with Bernardino Machido, the republican leader, was paving the way for a revolution, recently declared:

"We will kill the least number of persons possible, but at the psychological moment a republic quickly and effectively will be proclaimed. Six republican soldiers will guard the king against violence and all the ministers will be imprisoned."

Sketch of Deposed King.

King Manuel II, whose dethronement has been attempted and perhaps already accomplished by those who would establish a republican form of government in Portugal, was born Nov. 15, 1889, the younger son of the late King Carlos I and Queen Marie Amelia, daughter of Phillippe, Duke of Orleans. He succeeded to the throne on the assassination of his father and elder brother, Prince Luiz Phillippe, Feb. 1, 1908. He is unmarried. The reigning dynasty of Portugal belongs to the house of Briganza, which dates from the end of the fourteenth century.

The young monarch is tall and well developed and of blonde type. He is considered handsome and agreeable, and though retiring in disposition, has won many friends. He is popular in England and is said to have a warm spot in his heart for America. In May, 1904, he was appointed a naval apprentice and an American squadron, under Rear Admiral Barker, then at the Azores, advanced the date of his arrival at Lisbon in order to be present at the ceremony in connection with the prince's advent in the navy.

He was reared with great care by the queen and until the date when his father and brother were assassinated he conducted himself in a manner that attracted many kindly expressions. In the affair Manuel was shot in the face and arm.

ENGLAND'S GOOD OFFICES.

London, Oct. 5.—There is a possibility that Great Britain will use its good offices to secure respect for the persons of King Manuel and the queen mother, Amelia of Portugal, from the revolutionists, who are reported to be in control at Lisbon. There is much public sympathy here for King Manuel. It is said that it was too much to expect of a boy that he would be a force in politics. As to the reflections upon his private life, all such suspicion is new in this country.

Close relations between the ruling houses and governments of Great Britain and Portugal give the empire a direct interest in the outcome of the revolution. A wireless message received by the admiralty today confirmed the dispatches reporting a revolution in Lisbon. As its first duty the British government ordered warships to Lisbon to protect the interests of British subjects. Then followed a conference at the foreign office between Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, and the Marquis de Soveral, the Portuguese minister to Great Britain. From the fact of this prompt and prolonged conference, it is concluded generally that Great Britain will use her kindly offices in the emergency.

Well Known in England.

King Manuel is a familiar figure in England. He visited this country as a prince and has been here three times since he was called to the throne. To those who have followed affairs in Portugal the news of the revolution did not come as a surprise. For some weeks telegraphic news from Lisbon has been censored but mail letters from correspondents at the Portuguese capital have drawn attention to the growing strength of the republicans as shown in the recent elections and to the waning popularity of the monarchy. The correspondents predicted important happenings at an early date. A London firm which does a large business in Portugal received a cablegram this morning from Oporto containing an order for goods. This is an indication that the revolution up to this forenoon had been confined to Lisbon. It is known this is the only wire message received here from Portugal in the past 24 hours. The cable between Lisbon and th Azores is interrupted.

Private advices from Lisbon received here this morning state that the harbor at the Portuguese capital is closed and that Portuguese warships are guarding the entrance preventing even foreign ships from departing. The admiralty has received a wireless message from the British cruiser Newcastle reporting its arrival off Lisbon.

HEARS TROOPS WERE FAITHFUL.

Pisa, Italy, Oct. 5.—The Portuguese legation here, while in receipt of no official advices, understands that faithful troops of the royal palace up to 3 o'clock this morning had succeeded in repulsing the republicans.

The Portuguese legation announces that it is practically certain that Lisbon and Oporto are in the hands of the revolutionists, but adds that it should not be concluded that the entire realm has fallen. An official statement adds:

"No definite result has been obtained since Monday when the first outbreaks occurred, and the struggle undoubtedly continues between the royalists and revolutionists."

The Brazilian minister, who is here, learns by way of England that King Manuel has sought refuge on the Brazilian battleship Sao Paulo.

LONDON GETS MEAGER NEWS.

London, Oct. 5.—The admiralty today received a brief wireless message confirming the news of a revolution in Lisbon, but giving even fewer details than the press dispatches of last night.

Upon the receipt of this message orders were sent to Gibraltar for the dispatch immediately of two cruisers to watch British interests in the troubled country.

The cruiser Newcastle, which had just reached Gibraltar enroute for China, proceeded today for Lisbon and was followed by the cruiser Minerva.

Beyond the wireless message received by the admiralty the foreign office has no word of the revolution.

The Portuguese legation here also is without official advices. Acting, however, on the news dispatches, the Marquis De Soveral, Portuguese minister to Great Britain, called at the foreign office early today and had a long conference with Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, Sir Arthur Nicolson, the new permanent secretary of the foreign office, upon hearing through private sources last night that telegraphic communication with Lisbon was interrupted, had sent a cable message to British Minister Sir F. H. Villiers, asking the cause of the interruption.

Got No Response.

This message, like all other messages, was received at the cable office at the sender's risk and as no response was received it is assumed that the telegraph and cable stations in Portugal are in the possession of the revolutionists. The Eastern Telegraph company has had no communication with Portugal since yesterday and the Direct Spanish company, which works its wires through Spain, reports no communication today beyond Madrid.

The news of the revolution depressed foreign stocks fractionally on the stock exchange today. Portuguese securities fell and consols eased in sympathy. There was, however, not much selling and the pressure had little effect on other sections of the market.

The Portuguese consulate was without official information from Lisbon. An official of the consulate said candidly that the news of a revolution was not unexpected. For a long time, he said, there had been great dissatisfaction with the condition of affairs on the part of the republicans mainly because they had concluded from the progress made by Brazil that progress could be made in Portugal only under a republican form of government.

SPAIN WITHOUT NEWS.

Madrid, Oct. 5.—The Spanish telegraphic authorities announced before noon they were trying to communicate by wireless with the British fleet, supposed to be off Lisbon or near the Portuguese or Spanish coast.

There has been no communication between Madrid and the Portuguese capital since Tuesday morning. The only news of the revolution came by wireless from Santander.

It is believed here the revolutionists have cut the telegraph wires with the intention to restore them only when they are prepared to announce to the world that a republic had been proclaimed.

REVOLUTION EXPECTED.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The revolutionary outbreak in Portugal has been expected by state department officials as such an occurrence was indicated by reports of the American diplomatic representative at Lisbon who has kept in touch with the situation. Discontent was in evidence everywhere and rumors of plots were thick throughout the country.

American Minister Henry T. Gage is now at his post at Lisbon but so far no dispatches have reached the state department from him concerning the revolution. His silence is assumed by officials here to be due to the interruption of the telegraph service.

The Portuguese minister, Viscount De Alte, was bombarded with inquiries at his legation residence today but had no advices to throw light on the situation.

"This is so sudden; we have nothing," was the exclamation of one of the Portuguese.

There are no American interests of any particular importance in the zones of revolutionary activity in Portugal and there are few Americans living there.

The United States government has no intention of sending any warships to Portugal on account of the revolution. The protected cruiser Des Moines, which was sent to Liberia is now at Gibraltar and could be used in case the American minister at Lisbon or the state department officials, on their own initiative, should deem it wise to have an American ship in that vicinity.

APPREHENSION IN ROME.

Rome, Oct. 5.—Grave apprehension is felt here over the news from Portugal. Private reports are that the royal family has been imprisoned and a republic proclaimed.

Interest here is intense, especially as the queen dowager, Maria Pia, of Portugal, is an aunt of the Italian king, while the vatican is anxious over the religious situation and the possible effect it may produce in Spain.

REPUBLIC PROCLAIMED.

London, Oct. 5.—8:22 p. m.—The foreign office has just received a telegram from the British minister at Lisbon declaring that a republic has been proclaimed.

CARD OF THANKS.

It is impossible to convey a personal expression to each one who has claim on my gratitude for sympathy and many kind offices during the illness and on the occasion of the burial of my wife, Mrs. Nina Astry Brown, and I am impelled, therefore, to this public acknowledgment. The Order of Railway Conductors, and the Ladies' Auxiliary to that lodge, the Lodge of Elks, the Degree of Honor, and many of the ladies of Plymouth Congregational church were specially of great help and consolation to the family of my late wife and to myself. We cannot express the gratitude we feel.

During the night one of the wires of the Home Telephone company had broken and in falling to the earth directly above the sidewalk fell between two primary lighting wires of the traction company, suspended from other poles near by and passing beneath the telephone wires but parallel with them.

Cal Refner, a fellow-employe with Thomas, noticed the dangling wire and remarked that it must be gotten out of the way. Thomas took the wire from Refner's hand and walked back into the vacant lot, presumably intending to tie it to a small stake there in order to keep it out of the way of the workmen. It is believed that as he reached the spot he must have jerked the wire in an attempt to free it from the pole, and in this manner sawed through the damp insulation upon one of the heavily charged lighting wires.

Man Uttered No Sound.

In a flash, uttering no sound, Thomas fell lifeless to the ground some twenty feet distant from the spot where he had taken the wire from his companion's hand. Workmen who attempted to go to his relief found the wet earth heavily charged from its contact with the victim's body and were compelled to beat a hasty retreat to summon aid.

The police, the traction company, the telephone officials and the coroner were at once notified, and it was not until after the arrival of the linemen that the body could be rescued. For half an hour horrified spectators were compelled to stand and see the deadly work of the electric current and watch the smoldering fire in the man's clothing started by its contact with the wire.

Thomas had grasped the wire in his right hand, and as he fell he half turned, wrapping the wire almost completely about his body. The fore finger of the right hand was almost nearly severed by the searing wire, a deep furrow extending almost to the bone was burned in the right hip and leg and there were frightful burns upon other portions of the body.

Could Not Have Suffered.

The merciful feature of the distressing case is that the victim could not have suffered as the deadly wire burned its way into his body. Coroner Kesler, who at once began an investigation of the accident, says that beyond all question the man was killed at the very instant the wire which he clutched sawed its way through the insulation of the more heavily charged wire when brought in contact with it.

It is said that before Thomas took hold of the dangerous wire he was warned by several persons against the possible danger but that he replied: "It's all right; there is no danger if you know how to handle it."

INSURANCE TAX MAY BE REDUCED IN INDIANA

Feeling Exists That It is Higher Than is Just or Warranted.

Indianapolis, Oct. 5.—The state of Indiana in pressing the retaliatory tax collection against the foreign fire insurance companies in order to settle the status of the Indiana law with reference to the collection of taxes from foreign fire insurance companies, does so without the least malice or intent to unsettle the insurance business of Indiana. Governor Marshall made this declaration yesterday following a conference with Attorney General James Bingham, Auditor of State John C. Billheimer and Second Vice President Rumsey, of the Continental Fire Insurance company.

"We do not charge the insurance companies with wrong doing," said the governor. "They have paid all they were asked to pay and if one assertion made to me yesterday is true the companies will pay less taxes under the 2 per cent gross plan than under the per cent net plan. It was stated that New York collects the per cent gross only on the business written in the cities. In this case Indiana would receive less money in taxes, probably, from the New York companies doing business in this state than under the plan by which the taxes are collected now.

Desires Proper Collections.

"Later in the day, however, the statement was made that the per cent gross collection applies to the county as well as the city. I do not care which statement is true. What I do care about and what I do want to establish is the meaning of the retaliatory feature of the Indiana law. I am not concerned whether the state or the insurance companies profits by the decision of the courts. I want to know that the collections are made properly."

It was agreed yesterday that the Continental Fire Insurance company will be asked to pay the 2 per cent gross within thirty days. It was agreed further that this company will refuse payment on this basis and sue for an injunction to prevent the collection. If the decision of the court is against the insurance company every other New York company will be asked to settle according to the new plan.

Representatives of a New Jersey fire insurance company were expected to attend the conference yesterday, but they were not present. Similar proceedings likely will be instituted against some company from that state. The court in which the Continental Fire Insurance company's suit for injunction will be brought has not been made public.

SECOND HAND BURIAL LOTS

Because social standing reaches to the grave, a new business, which has the merit of novelty, has been developed in Brooklyn. A six months' trial has proved that it fills a long felt want, and reports of the success which has rewarded the efforts of its originators, a firm of undertakers, are likely to spread throughout the country and convert many undertakers into skillful real estate manipulators. It was simply the old proposition of demand for something exclusive and desirable that started the venture, and the Brooklyn firm promptly made it an important adjunct to its business.

In the course of their long career the undertakers frequently had noted that prospective customers longed for a final resting place which would be consistent with their material life. They were of the class who are particular about the appearance of their homes and the attractiveness of the neighborhoods in which they dwelt, and they wanted to make sure that when they passed away all the ideals of their material life would be reflected in the selection of their last abode.

Among these inquirers the one great trouble that confronted them seemed to be a doubt as to what certain cemeteries would be transformed into before it came their time to pass into another world. Among many there was an insuperable aversion to buying plots in the newer sections of burying grounds, as a result of the reasoning that one never can tell who one's next door neighbors are to be, and whether their social position in life will be such as to induce them to make provision whereby their graves will be adorned with imposing tombstones or kept up in a manner which betokens a full realization of the niceties of worldly existence.

Rather than take chances of being buried in a new section, which to the most hopeful only held forth a possibility of being developed up to the desired standard, many persons expressed their wishes for plots which might have been in use for generations, but which for divers reasons the owners were willing to sell. Such graves were in demand if their surroundings were of a character which betokened prosperity and social worth once held by those buried in neighboring plots.

So great seemed this inclination to acquire graves which might be termed second hand, if they were in a portion of the cemetery which appealed to the eye of an asthetic person, that the Brooklyn undertakers converted the idea into a business proposition and established a "Cemetery bureau." Acting on the truism that it pays to advertise when one has anything of merit to sell or buy, the Brooklyn undertakers advertised their readiness to purchase cemetery lots that the holders wished to dispose of. It was necessary to acquire cemetery lots from present owners before a market could be established for the sale of lots or plots to those who were particular about where all that was mortal of them would repose after death.

Many persons who held title to desirable lots were found willing to dispose of them. Various reasons were assigned for the willingness to sell. The most frequent was that survivors of families who had once lived in Brooklyn or Manhattan had moved to distant parts, had purchased burial plots in their new home cities and had had the bodies of their departed relatives removed to new resting places.

Some cemetery officials at first frowned upon the new business, mainly because the idea was novel, and incidentally because it deprived them of certain revenues. They themselves could not engage in the transaction of real estate operations which involved the sale of second-hand burial plots, for the law does not give them such a privilege. But with outsiders it was different, and the Brooklyn firm took up the new branch of its trade with energy.

"There is nothing surprising in second-hand burial lots," said a member of the firm. "Why should any one think it strange or unusual? When a man purchases a dwelling which has been occupied in a desirable section no one considers it a strange transaction. Then why should there be any surprise if people want a burial plot which has been used, but from which every trace of its former occupant has been removed? People want to be sure that when they die they will be buried amid surroundings that would have been congenial to them in life, and that is the reason why cemetery lots which have been used, but are desirably located, are so much in demand."

A Good Reason

The reason Root Juice is doing so much good for so many people, is easily understood, when it is known that the great remedy contains ingredients for the stomach, bowels, bladder, liver and kidneys, and that each ingredient was experimented with through a term of many years by practically all of the best doctors of the world, and adopted by most of them for general use in certain ailments. Then the ingredients were combined so that all of the above mentioned organs would be benefited at once from use of the combination. On the theory that the stomach could not be made healthy if the liver and kidneys were left out of order, and vice versa. That the theory is a good one, is being proved by thousands of people, who have received and are receiving wonderful benefits from the great preparation, which is for the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys, regardless of the symptoms.

Much local information regarding the great medicine, can be had at Bradley Bros. drug store, 627 Calhoun St.

Sour Stomach

It is Caused by Food Not Digesting in the Stomach and Can Easily Be Put in Fine Shape.

Belching of gas and sour food into the mouth means that the food in your stomach is fermenting and forming poisonous gases.

It means more; it means that your stomach is bad; that it is not pouring into and mixing with the food the gastric juices which are necessary to properly digest food.

If this condition is allowed to continue the stomach will become flabby and weak and the blood will become watery or impoverished.

You only have one stomach to take care of; it will be with you as long as you live.

Treat it as well as you can and when it fails to do its work and causes distress, give it the best remedy for stomach ailments known to science.

Give it MI-O-NA stomach tablets, the remedy that Meyer Bros. Co. guarantees to cure any stomach trouble, or money back.

There is nothing on earth that will turn a tired, flabby, overworked stomach into a strong, vigorous one in so short a time as MI-O-NA.

For distress after eating, fermentation, heaviness, heartburn or gas, two MI-O-NA tablets will chase away the misery. MI-O-NA surely does cure indigestion, and the price is only 50 cents a large box at Meyer Bros. Co. and druggists everywhere.

TINY BABY HAD DREADFUL ECZEMA

On Hands, Face, Nose and Mouth. Hard Crust Formed and Cracked Open. Blood Ran. Itched Frightfully. Mitts on Hands. No Rest.

Got Cuticura. In 3 Days Relief. In a Week Cured Without a Mark.

"I have a little baby almost a year old. When it was two months old it got eczema on top of both her hands, on her face and inside her nose and mouth. She refused to drink and one of her eyes almost closed up. A hard crust formed and would crack open and the blood ran out. It itched so frightfully that the poor little girl could not rest. We had to keep mitts on her hands to keep her from scratching at her face and her mother was forced to sit in a rocking chair with the baby day and night. We had a very good doctor and he did all that he possibly could to relieve the baby's torture but the results were not what we had looked for.

"We had read of the Cuticura remedies so we went to the drug store and got some Cuticura soap and Cuticura ointment. We used them just as directed and in three days the crust began to come off. In a week there was no more scab and now the baby is cured without a mark, sleeps soundly in her cradle and her parents in their bed, with no more sleepless nights because of the baby's suffering. Cuticura seems a wonderful remedy for this disease and any one having eczema should not delay in getting it. Henry M. Fogel, R. F. D. 1, Bath, Pa., Dec. 9, 1909."

CALLED FOR BLOOD VENGEANCE IN A COURTROOM

Aged Neapolitan Woman in San Francisco Starts Feud Demonstration.

San Francisco, Oct. 5.—Unable to understand the workings of the legal machinery in the court where she sought vengeance for the murder of her son and believing that the men accused of his death had been set free, Lucia Ballestrio, an aged Neapolitan woman, sank her teeth in her forearm in the police court yesterday and waving the bleeding member above her head, screamed:

"The blood of my murdered son."

It was the blood feud call of her people and in a moment the court was in an uproar.

In the prisoner's dock cowered Pietro Patronia and Vincenio Randaszo, Neapolitan fishermen, charged with the murder of Mario Ballestrio. As the cry of the mother rose, a fierce hiss swept through the crowded benches of the court room where many of her own people sat. For a moment it looked as though the eye for an eye doctrine of the vendetta would be carried out in the shadow of the bench itself. Court attendants sprang toward the angry crowd, but a cooler head among the foreigners soothed the mother with assurances that the case had been merely postponed and the prisoners were still in the grip of the law. As this was made clear to her the woman collapsed and was led from the room weeping.

Ballestrio was shot to death about a month ago on Fishermen's wharf. When the detectives failed to capture the murderers, the dead man's son pledged himself by the blood of his father to find the murderers out and he succeeded in furnishing the police with a chain of evidence that brought about the arrest of the two defendants.

Plump Folks and Thin Folks

Samose Will Make People Fat—"Money Back if It Fails" Say Meyer Bros. Co.

The line of beauty is a curve. Women may be thin and graceful, but not thin and beautiful. There is a vast number of pale, thin, scrawny people who are all brains and nerves, but without the strength and health that accompanies the standard weight. Good flesh and perfect health go together. A true flesh-forming food like Samose is absolutely necessary to many people.

This remarkable discovery comes in tablet form and when taken after meals mingles with the food and helps it to assimilate so that it makes rich blood and pleasing plumpness.

Meyer Bros. Co. have so much confidence in this remarkable flesh-forming food and health restorer that they are willing and glad to allow any customer to deposit 50c with them and take home a box of Samose with the understanding that if it does not give a marked increase in good firm flesh the money will be returned without any questions.

THE AEROPLANE AS IT IS

(Frank Fitch in Collier's.)

Man has been fooling with aeroplanes ever since the calendar was invented. Historically, the machine is divided into three classes—tumblers, gliders and fliers.

The tumbler, the earliest type, was a mechanical nightmare with a fool at one end and a funeral at the other. It was the speediest of all methods, attaining a velocity of sixteen feet the first second and doubling it every succeeding second of flight. Unfortunately, it always flew straight downward. The first eighteen hundred years of aviation were spent merely in trying to change the direction of the aeroplane's flight and reduce its speed.

The glider, which was invented a few years ago, was a great improvement, though still quite fatal. The glider had no motive power and was merely supposed to carry a man from the top of a high hill to the bottom. It was successful, but was so unexciting that there was no glory even in getting killed by it.

The flier is a glider plus a gasoline engine. Like the early aeroplane, it is modeled after the birds. Its slowness in developing was due to the fact that no substitute for worms and bugs as a fuel could be discovered. The task of translating two pecks of assorted insects into flapping power was beyond science until gasoline, the universal excitement producer, finally stepped into the breach. It was then discovered that by mixing one part of gasoline with twenty-five parts of common, every-day United States wind a violence could be produced second only to a judicious mixture of Roosevelt, Jack Johnson and gunpowder. When this happened the aeroplane flew. It had to. Aeroplanes now reach a speed of sixty miles an hour in their effort to get away from the gasoline motors which afflict them.

In the summer of 1908 it was suddenly discovered that the Wright brothers, of Dayton, Ohio, had been doing cross-country work in an aeroplane for five years. No one had believed the reports hitherto, but that summer Mr. Wilbur Wright took a biplane to Paris and broke all records except the coming down speed mark. He carried passengers, cut figure 8's, chased cock sparrows and stayed up until supper time, repeatedly coming down entirely of his own accord—this last being an absolutely novel feat. The Wright brothers created an enormous sensation and for several months were so pestered with kings, dukes, millionaires and scientists that they hardly dared to come down out of the zenith for meals.

The modern aeroplane is remarkably simple. Anyone can build one with the aid of a few stout hickory poles, a little canvas, some piano wire, a gasoline engine and a decision of the supreme court. There are two prominent varieties, the monoplane, which consists merely of a pair of wings and a long tail, and the biplane, which has two canvas planes, one above the other, and does not run so much to appendages. There are also a great many try-planes, built by amateurs, but they are not used much for flying. All over Kansas chickens are roosting on try-planes and are finding them most comfortable and substantial. The aeroplane is now as easy to operate as a bicycle. We have this on the word of a great many aviators who are still in good health. It is true that the chance of going over the handle bars while learning to steer the fool thing has kept nervous old ladies and fat gentlemen of sedentary habits from rushing joyously into the sport, but to the young athlete looping the loop over a cumulus cloud is no trick at all. The aviator must first see that his engine is sparking, carbureting, feeding, lubricating, cooling and synchronizing perfectly. This takes from ten minutes to two weeks. He must next choose a level field free from trees, bulls and spectators. Then, seating himself in the machine, he places his shoulders against the warping planes, puts his feet on the rudder lever and the throttle, puts his head against the tail wagger and attaches the string which controls the feed valve to his left ear. Then, seizing the steering wheel firmly with both hands, he grasps the spark lever, the lubricating adjuster, the pump control and the fire extinguisher, cranks the machine with his teeth and mounts gayly aloft. There is really nothing to it. Rank amateurs pick it up in a few months.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

What the Sentinel Had to Say About Persons and Events Twenty-Five Years Ago.

General Manager Thorp, of the American Midland railroad, is in the city to select an entrance to Fort Wayne for the line named. This road is projected between Fort Wayne and New York, and is not a newspaper affair, because workmen are now making the grade between Ottawa and Chicago Junction, in Ohio. At this place the road is destined to meet the Fort Wayne, Peoria and Galesburg road from the west, for which project much aid has been voted and awaits utilization. Hon. Charles McCulloch drove Mr. Thorp about the city today, and several other gentlemen will meet with them this evening.

M. S. Wickliffe this morning entered the service of A. S. Lafferty, the clothier, as head salesman.

Marriage licenses: William Westleff and Caroline Wichman; William James and Anna Ross.

Byron Hattersley was in the city yesterday to visit relatives and greet his friends. Mr. Hattersley is temporarily a resident of Aurora, Ill., where he has a contract to build the waterworks system.

The old tree that stood at the entrance to the Cathedral has been cut down. The growth was planted by the late Monsignor Benoit, and began to decay the moment he died. The singular coincidence attracted some attention.

The promoters of the recent soldiers' reunion will give a military ball at the Princess rink and hope in that way to realize what they lost on the scheme.

Forty of the Northern Indiana fair stables on the fair ground were destroyed by fire last evening and a tramp was cremated in the blaze.

The lecture room of the First Presbyterian church was used yesterday morning for the first time, and Rev. Dr. Moffat preached one of his best sermons.

Mr. Will Bond has disposed of the World to Clarence Cook, of the Visitor.

MERCANTILE VALUE OF CROPS.

(From Collier's.)

In the foreign trade of the United States the three largest single items of export are raw cotton, copper and illuminating oils. These together aggregate 40 per cent. of our total exports. In cotton very largely and in copper and not so much so in oils, the labor involved and paid for is confined to originally producing the raw article, and practically only this one class of profit is left in the country.

But in corn, fortunately our greatest crop, and in hay, our fourth largest crop, the case is different. Here the article originally produced is only the first form of a to-be-manufactured product, with the exception of a relatively small portion used for subsistence of draft animals. All the rest is used in the manufacture (the correct term) of cattle and hogs, and in the manufacture of many classes of food, solid and liquid, for mankind. These manufactured products include cornmeals and many corn foods, glucose, starch, alcohol (especially denatured), whiskies, coarse paper, etc. These corn product trades are all prosperous. They employ large labor forces, read abundant profits and add very considerably to the volume of our foreign exports.

The feeding of cattle and hogs is practically a manufacturing business in corn and hay. The great feeders of the country can estimate accurately almost to a pound what added weight 100 pounds of corn and hay will give to a steer and what part thereof, adding weight to the steer and passing on, is consumed by the hog. It is asserted that the manufacture of cloth from cotton is not more accurately known in its details of costs and results than that of cattle and hogs from corn and hay.

The next step of slaughtering and preparing the meats for market is really only a further manufacture of the corn and hay products. Here additional enormous payments of labor are involved, and by reason of the magnitude of the business, profits, small in percentage, become great in the aggregate. The business of four great meat firms, employing very large capital, furnished in 1909 exports of

REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL.

Portugal is no longer a monarchy, if the situation is accurately shown by the dispatches conveying the meager news that has sifted through the censor. The young King Emanuel has been dethroned and the flag of the revolution hoisted above the palace. To what extent there has been bloodshed or to what extent the people have joined the revolutionary leaders are not detailed in the dispatches. Portugal is a tight little body who keeps her affairs much to herself. The report that the king has taken refuge aboard a British warship gives full color to the dispatches saying the army and the navy have revolted. It is evident that the reign of Emanuel, who succeeded upon the assassination of his father and the crown prince two years ago last February, has been as brief as it was at the time of his accession predicted it would be. Portugal has been in a state of disturbance for some time. Industrial troubles coupled with radical political agitations have made the throne insecure. Lately the young sovereign has been searching Europe for an eligible and willing princess to share his throne with him. His marriage would seem likely to be forced to an indefinite postponement. Moreover, he has not much to offer. A crownless king and a realmless monarch may look far for a royal mate. Portugal has considerable democratic spirit andd enlightenment and the republic now declared may endure.

ANOTHER TRACTION HORROR.

All that has been stated concerning the traction horror at Kingsland two weeks ago furnishes abundant and timely comment upon the similar horror at Staunton, Ill. In causes, circumstances and consequences the two tragedies are so much alike the details of the one almost answer for the other. Two cars on the same track going in opposite directions, high speed, a sharp curve, carelessness of or disobedience to orders—and the factors of a catastrophe were at hand.

Within a fortnight there have been three electric traction wrecks—one at Kingsland, with forty-one dead; one at Tipton, with six dead; one at Staunton, with thirty-six to forty dead. Almost one hundred lives have been taken in three collisions embracing six cars, of which two carried no passengers. That is slaughter on a huge scale and the public ought to arouse itself to the fact that such slaughter is avoidable, needless.

Interurban railways have got to get down to the hard bottom of the matter and recognize that they are in the railroad, not the street car business. The big interurban systems of Indiana, Illinois and other states have ceased to be extensions of urban transportation lines. Let them run, their systems as railroads. Meanwhile, two states have now occasion for some law-making of a useful and humane sort.

HONEST—"GLAD 2 C U."

Fort Wayne is delighted to be hostess to so deserving guests as the nogles of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine. The occasion of their big fall meeting and Mardi Gras spectacle is one this city will have occasion long to remember, both for the numbers and distinguished character of the visitors it brings to the city. The resident members of Mizpah temple have spared no expense and have failed not to make any effort to make this fete of surpassing beauty and of general interest. It need not be said they have succeeded. Only in the matter of weather have they failed to "deliver the goods." Wide are flung the gates, spread is the feast. All are welcome. It's on the square——"Glad 2 C U."

THE ACCUSING FIGURE.

Underpaid American Minister Must Face Cruel Hardships.

(Philadelphia Ledger.)

William, the Circuit Rider, is dead. He killed himself in a Georgia field last Sunday.

He was the Rev. Dr. Lundy H. Harris, the original of the central character in "A Circuit Rider's Wife." That was the book written by his wife, Corra Harris, which created such a sensation when it was published, by reason of its frank exposure of the conditions under which Methodist circuit riders have to live and work.

Her story was wonderful in its pitiless revelations and in its entire neglect to gloss over or minimize those features of her life which a less courageous woman would have hidden.

It has been a commonplace that country parsons are underpaid, but until Mrs. Harris wrote her book the cruel hardships under which they live were not real in the comfortable imaginations of Americans. She did not deal in figures, but when one understands that there are clergymen in this country who serve in the cure of souls for $111 a year—and they are not negro preachers, either, although that is the explanation which would probably suggest itself—the unlovely picture that she draws is made complete.

If one were asked what ministers in America receive the lowest salaries he would probably hazard a guess that they were the ministers of Baptist or Methodist colored congregations in the south—and be wrong. The average of all Christian ministers in America is $663 a year, and the ministers who, giving their time to the work, not earning money for labor outside of the ministry, who receive least per year are not southern ministers at all, nor are they the colored preachers. They are the white ministers, and they labor, some of them, in the north and west.

In continental United States the two classes of ministers who receive the lowest annual salaries are the Congregational Methodist, who average but $111, and the Separate Baptist, who get a little more per year, but not much, viz., $121. Congregational Methodists had their rise in Georgia fifty odd years ago, but they have extended until ministers of their body are laboring in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, in Missouri, Tennessee, Texas and seven other states. They hold Methodist doctrines, but did not like Methodist policy, and so adopted the Congregational one. Hence the name. There are 324 ministers, serving about 15,000 members, and they earn, all of them together, the large total of $35,964 a year.

If Dame Nature feels as kindly towards our visitors as we, they will leave Fort Wayne with kindly thots--- and dry feet.

SUITS OVERCOATS and RAIN COATS

—THE QUALITY— Lukes' HOME of GOOD CLOTHING in Fort Wayne at 626-28 Calhoun Street

When you want the very best clothes it is possible to tailor, we respectfully submit clothing that we can assure you beyond the possibility of a doubt, is not only unsurpassed but is absolutely unequalled

Hirsh-Wickwire was originated from the conception of Mr. Harry Hirsh, to build clothing exactly like the hundred dollar tailor would build it, regardless of cost. The idea was brilliant; it's realization has revolutionized the ready-for-service clothing industry. From only pure wool and worsted fabrics and the best of trimmings, Hirsh-Wickwire use nothing but the hundred dollar custom tailor's methods of hand tailoring their goods into suits and overcoats. Whether you buy one of their suits at $22 or $40, you get the same high-class tailoring exactly. No man, regardless of the money he pays his tailor can buy better tailoring than you can buy in a Hirsh-Wickwire suit or overcoat at $22 or $25. Such suits vary in price because of the quality of fabrics and not because of a variance in tailoring.

LEWIS DRAWS THIRD FINE IN SHORT LAY OFF

Sent to Jail a Second Time and Warned—The City Court.

Clarence Lewis first made his appearance felt here when he jumped into the limelight without a pair of pants and when the police got him he told a story about having bought a meal and some drinks for a couple of men who stole his trousers, his watch and his money.

This morning he was in on a vagrancy charge and went from the city court to jail under a fine of $5 and costs ,with a warning to get out of town as soon as he is released. The first time he was up he was let go. In a day or two he was back for intoxication and he was released from jail Sunday.

The fellow's actions since his arrival have impressed th epolice department with the belief that hie is not well balanced mentally and an effort will be made to find out something more about him.

The Other Cases.

William Cosgrove, formerly employed at Robison park and who is charged with having bought groceries for his own use on the representation that they were for the park lessee, asked for a continuance until tomorrow and it was granted. Coverdale and Archer preferred the charge.

Mike Herbert had a gold watch that he could not properly account for and on a charge of train climbing he was held a few days for investigation.

Harold Barnes, discharged from the army, was held on a charge of public intoxication until his record at Van Wert is looked up. He is wanted there, it is said, for failure to pay a board bill.

Harry McFarland and James Brady, plain drunks, were let go.

FOR DESERTING CHILD.

N. C. Naguire, a traveling salesman, is held for the Sidney, Ohio, authorities on a charge of abandoning and failing to provide for his child. He says he is prominently connected there and that his child is well provided for.

JUSTICE MOODY HAS QUIT SUPREME BENCH

Resignation of Invalid Justice is Sent to the President.

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 5.—President Taft yesterday received the resignation of Associate Justice William H. Moody, of the supreme court, to take effect on Nov. 20.

The president wrote to Mr. Moody, who is at Magnolia, accepting the resignation and expressing his high regard for the retiring jurist. In retirement, the justice will receive full pay of an active member of the court, $12,000 a year.

The justice has been ill more than a year. It has been known since early in the summer that he would retire. He personally made known his intentions to the president, and offered to retire at any time that would be most convenient to the president.

Urged to Take His Own Time.

Mr. Taft stated then that he had no intention of appointing any federal justices until the regular session of congress had convened. He urged the justice to take his own time.

The enabling act passed in behalf of Mr. Moody, who has not served a sufficient length of time to permit of his retirement under the ordinary process of law, expires late in November.

The president has not selected a successor. His mind is still open in regard to all of the supreme court appointments and also in regard to the appointments to the newly created court of commerce. He informed several candidates for judicial honors that he would give them a hearing the last week in November, which indicates that the president will leave some of the places open until shortly before congress convenes.

Hughes' Chances Less Bright.

The chances for Governor Hughes being named as chief justice seems to be less bright since the cabinet meetings at Washington.

Opinions were expressed by members of the cabinet at these meetings that Governor Hughes lacked judicial experience, and his record showed him to be too uncompromising to make an ideal chief justice. Notwithstanding the objections raised, however, members of the cabinet were unable to suggest any other man for the place.

A BIG CIRCUS' EXPENSES.

Operating Outlay Begins With Money Spent for Winter Quartering.

(Everybody's Magazine.)

The operating expenses begin with the cost of wintering a circus, apart from all repairs. For convenience sake the car is made the unit. The twenty weeks that the show spends in winter quarters represent an expenditure of more than $1,000 for each car. So the big shows start on the road with a running expense deficit of about $50,000. Then, on the road, there is a cost of about $55 a day for each car; the unit charge is larger for the smaller shows, amounting to upward of $100 a car. Therefore, when the big show is traveling it must pay out from $7,500 to $8,000 a day of seven days a week, while it has an income only six days in the week.

The most highly paid acts are the "thrillers" which the press agent announces as "death defying"—and there is no exaggeration. The famous "dip of death" stunt, in which a young woman tobogganed on a property automobile that turned a somersault, commanded $1,000 a week, of which the young woman who raisked health and life received $125 a week, while the remainder went to the owner of the act.

"Desperado," in the Barnum & Bailey show, who dives headforemost from the top of the arena onto an inclined plane, is considered a real performer. It takes tremendous nerve and nice skill to make that leap, for the slightest variation means death. "Desperado" gets $500 a week for two performances a day.

The clowns alone are a very expensive feature of the big shows. The Barnum & Bailey and the Ringling shows each carry fifty funmakers, and they get from $35 to $150 a week. They are highly valuable, but still $75,000 a season, not counting their living, seems a lot of money to spend on them.

Advertising expenses—the second largest item—reach a total of $1,700 a day. The "paper," which means all advertising matter, from the wondrous lithographs that make the countryside brilliant if not beautiful, to the handbills, costs $800 a day. The newspaper advertising averages $300 a day, and the balance is expended in operating the advance cars and in paying the charges of posting.

Transportation charges vary from $200 to $1,500 a day, but the average is little above the minimum, because of the long stops in cities. Two weeks in Chicago, a week in Philadelphia and a week in Boston keep the average down. In a whole season the show will lose not more than one day in traveling, Sundays excepted.

ENGLISH JESUIT PRIEST ASSAILS PROTESTANTISM.

THE REV. BERNARD VAUGHAN.

New York, Oct. 5.—The Rev. Bernard Vaughan, famous English Jesuit, denounced Protestantism in a stirring sermon at the St. Patrick's cathedral. Father Vaughan spoke in part as follows:

"I take it if St. Paul the Apostle were to come to New York he would sweep the entire city into the Catholic church with his eloquence. St. Paul breaks up all un-Catholic theories. He tears them to tatters when he tells us that Christ is the head of all the church and that the church is His body. As the body of Christ the church is a real being, an energizing organization.

"Try if you will to hold up the growth of the Catholic church in America. You might just as well try to hold up the falls of Niagara. Not even the gates of hell can prevail against her. Is there any Catholic bishop who would dare say what this Protestant bishop has said of his church—that she was waning and ready for her funeral oration. The Catholic church has never yielded a single jot or title of dogmatic teaching. She is the one and only one that dares tell the message of God to the man on the throne and the man on the street. She will hear nothing in the line of divorce. She will not allow husbands and wives to artificially arrange the number of children there shall be in the nursery as they regulate the number of servants there shall be in the kitchen."

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

BULLET IN SPINE FOR NEARLY A YEAR

Little Huntington Girl, Shot by Her Brother, Brought Here for an Operation.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 5.—Lying almost wholly paralyzed since last Thanksgiving day, Ethel Patten, the little thirteen-year-old girl who was injured when a bullet flying from a small rifle in the careless hands of a younger brother lodged in her spinal column, will undergo an operation at the hands of Fort Wayne specialists, in the hope that the use of her limbs may be regained. She was taken to the Hope hospital in Fort Wayne yesterday. There surgical work most delicate will be required to reveal the injury done to the spinal cord by the bullet when it lodged in the vertebrae and wide interest among those of the medical profession as well as others will be aroused by the almost hopeless effort to restore to the little miss the use of her cramped limbs by a surgical operation.

One day last November, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wamper, on Nile street, the young Patten children were at play. Both parents being dead, the children lived with the grandparents. In a spirit of play, a little brother picked up a rifle that was supposed to be unloaded and without a thought pointed it at his sister, Ethel. As he touched the trigger there was a flash, followed by a sharp scream and the slim form of his sister dropped to the floor. On first examination it was thought she could not survive the day.

As the little brother pointed the gun, Ethel turned away and the bullet penetrated her back at the spine. Physicians and surgeons pronounced her case hopeless. Day after day the end was momentarily expected. After weeks of unconsciousness, the little miss rallied. Though completely paralyzed from the middle of the torso down, her arm movement regained normal activity and her mind was as bright as a new dollar. The medical fraternity of the city were awed. The case was unusual in various aspects.

In-as-much as the afflicted girl seemed to gain and then hold her strength and keep up in spirit, Huntington doctors took considerable interest in the case. Clinics were held, but in each instance, it was the verdict that it would only be a question of time. Now that nearly a year has elapsed and Ethel continues hale and happy, Fort Wayne specialists were interested in her case, and it is for the purpose of careful study that she was taken to that city. If any possible chance exists for relief by operation, this will be done in time. Below the injury line, the girl's little body has wasted and the legs are drawn in pitiful manner.

DIED IN MICHIGAN.

Lafe P. Walser, Large Land Owner of Wells County.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 5.—L. P. Walser, living on a farm near Domestic, died very suddenly yesterday. His death occurred in Michigan, where he went several weeks ago to look after a large fruit farm which he purchased there some time ago, and was due to heart disease. Mr. Walser was one of the largest land owners of Nottingham township and had a big farm adjoining the little town of Domestic. He also owned extensive tracts of farm land near the little own of Beulah, Mich., north of Cadillac.

Rheumatism in Ankles

One Bottle of Rheuma Cured Woman Who Could Not Walk.

Marvelous as this story may seem, it is absolutely true; but this is only one of the many almost magical cures that Rheuma is performing these days.

Mrs. Gertrude Kozel, Smithfield, Pa., write on Feb. 14, 1910: "I had Rheumatism for over a year; it settled in my ankles and I could not walk. I have taken one bottle of Rheuma and do not have any more pain, and I can again walk at will."

Meyer Bros. Co. will sell any reader of The Sentinel a bottle of Rheuma for 50 cents, and guarantees it to cure any case of any kind of Rheumatism or money back.

Gratifying relief comes in a day, because Rheuma acts at one time on the Kidneys, Stomach, Liver and Blood, and starts to rid the entire system of poisonous Uric Acid at once.

Mail orders filled, charges prepaid, by Rheuma Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Write for free trial bottle.

ADOPTED DAUGHTER GETS BULK OF ESTATE

Will of Frank T. Zimmerman, Deceased, Wealthy Manufacturer of Auburn, is Filed.

Auburn, Ind., Oct. 5.—The last will of Frank T. Zimmerman, the wealthy manufacturer of this city whose death occurred the latter part of last week and whose estate amounts to over $80,000, was filed yesterday and one of the interesting provisions in it is that his adopted daughter, Mrs. Charles O. Borst, of this city, and her children are given large portions, the deceased not having any children of his own.

To his adopted daughter, Mrs. Borst, he bequeathed $2,000 of stock in the Zimmerman Manufacturing company and to her three children $1,000 of stock each.

To the three children of John Zimmerman, the deceased's brother, he left $500 of stock for each.

To his nieces, Miss Mary Zimmerman, he left $1,000 of stock, and Miss Maxie, $200 of stock, and to his nephew, Roy, $200 of stock.

To Wayne Weaver, grandson of Mrs. Sallie Weamer, $500 of stock was bequeathed; to Mrs. Weamer $100 of stock and to Mrs. Tillie Morse, $200 of stock. These ladies are sisters of Mrs. Zimmerman.

All the rest of the estate was left to his wife during her natural life, same to be managed by his brother, John Zimmerman, and as a supplemental fund she is to receive the life insurance carried by her husband.

Showing his regard for his wife's future welfare he expresses his wish that Miss Mary Zimmerman remain with her as her companion and for such services she shall be paid $100 per year in addition to her weekly salary and in the event she shall remain until the death of his wife he wills her a sum equal to $5,000, including the $100 yearly amounts.

After the death of Mrs. Zimmerman the home, located on North Indiana avenue, and all contents will become the property of Mrs. Borst.

All of the remainder of the estate will then be divided between Mrs. Borst and John Zimmerman, the former to receive three-fourths and the latter one-fourth.

Mr. Zimmerman nominated his brother, John, to be the executor of his will.

WARSAW CITIZENS TURN OFFERS DOWN

Oppose the Payment of Big Bonuses for the Location of Factories There.

Warsaw, Ind., Oct. 5.—Past experience convinced the twenty-five citizens and members of the Warsaw Ten Thousand club, who met at the office of J. S. Baker for the purpose of considering the proposition to locate two factories, that it is poor policy to offer bonuses and both concerns were turned down.

W. H. Brewer, of Chicago, formerly of Warsaw, appeared before the members of the club and citizens and explained the offer of the concern he represents, the Peerless Tire Co. A bonus of $10,000 was required to locate the factory.

The second proposition came from a Chicago upholstering concern, which is also seeking offers in many surrounding cities. This company also demanded a large bonus.

Mr. Brewer will tonight appear before a body of Columbia City residents with the same proposition he made here.

FUNERAL HELD TODAY.

Sketch of the Life of Mayor Frederick, of Garrett.

Garrett, Ind., Oct. 5.—The funeral of Wm. J. Frederick, the deceased mayor of Garrett, took place this morning at his home and the remains were taken to Fort Wayne, where services were held in the Scottish Rite Cathedral, after which the body was shipped to Belleville, O., where the interment takes place.

The deceased was born on August 22, 11845, at Franklin Square, O. He was twice married and is survived by the wife of the second union, also seven children, Mrs. Charles Abell, of Garrett; Mrs. Homer Allan, of Erie, Pa.; Mrs. Francis Shoup, of Defiance, Ohio; Miss Frances Frederick, who is attending school at South Bend, and William, Jr., Ruth and Russell Frederick. Also two brothers, Alfred and Joseph Frederick, of Pittsburg, Pa., and two sisters, Mrs. Jessie Warrington, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Julia Sheets, of Salem, Ohio.

He served in the civil war as a member of the 1st Ohio regiment. He was a pioneer of the city of Garrett and was long prominent in its affairs and in DeKalb county.

He served as a member of the city council and as a member of the Garrett school board prior to his election as mayor of the city, November last. Mr. Frederick took his office as mayor the first day of the present year.

For many years Mr. Frederick was actively engaged in large business interests, but the later years of his life he was not employed in real business activities, and much of this time was spent in Bellville, Ohio.

GARRETT PAPER MILLS.

The Defunct Institution Will Be Sold at Auction.

Garrett, Ind., Oct. 5.—F. D. West, president of the Savings Loan & Trust company, which company was made receiver for the defunct Garrett Paper Mills, has filed his invoice of the real and personal property of the mills but declares he is unable to fix any intelligent value on it.

Because the institution is hopelessly insolvent; because of there being so many claims; because of the chaotic condition of the various kinds of liens and the claims of creditors and because of it being impossible to fix any actual value on the mills, the receiver asks that everything be sold at auction and that all claims be filed in a regular way and the same verified within a period of thirty days. The indebtedness is said to be $16,000.

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS.

But for That Bluffton's Tax Rate Would Be 14 Cents Less.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 5.—The tax rate for the city of Bluffton, exclusive of the special levy of 65 cents on lots alone, will be about the same this year as last, and it would be much less but for the gravel road tax, levied for the payment of bonds issued for the payment for roads in Harrison township. Normally the city rate would have shown a decrease of 14 cents. The rate in the city last year was $3.71 on the hundred dollars, and this year with the gravel road tax the same as last year, the rate would be 3.57, a decrease of 14 cents.

GOES TO CALIFORNIA.

It is the purpose of Mr. Spillers to accept employment in the California oil fields. Mr. Spillers formerly worked in the Indiana oil business when the local field was booming.

KENDALLVILLE FAIR.

Receipts Were Greater Than Those of Last Year.

Kendallville, Ind., Oct. 5.—Although no official report of the receipts and expenditures of this year's fair of the Eastern Indiana Agricultural association has been given out for publication, Secretary U. C. Brouse and Director D. C. Wilson have furnished enough information to show that the cash receipts from all departments will reach nearly $7,000 and will exceed last year's receipts several hundred dollars.

His bride is a daughter of Albert Sivits and wife at South Whitley, and has been a valued employe of the office force of the Atoz Printing company.

BLOOD INFUSION SAVES BABY.

Rare Operation Is Performed In a Waukegan Hospital.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse, of the Northwestern University Medical school, at the Jane McAllister hospital in Waukegan yesterday, sewed together the radial artery of a man and the deep femoral vein of a 4-days-old baby and by blood infusion saved the life of the boy, who was dying of hemorrhage. The man was Frank Codia, a laborer, of Victoria street, Waukegan, and the baby was his son.

The operation, a rare and difficult one in a case of this kind, is said to be the fourth in the history of medical science. Transfusion was continued for seven minutes, and late yesterday afternoon the boy was pronounced out of danger. His cheeks show color and it is believed he will pull through. The father is none the worse for his experience.

Ten Waukegan physicians attended the clinic, the patient being in charge of Dr. Bellows, of Waukegan. Local anaesthetics only were employed and these only on Codia.

Following the ordeal Codia arose from the operating table at the hospital and said:

"I feel fine. Only as though I were intoxicated."

Dr. Lespinasse asserts that with the use of magnetism rings limbs may be joined and arteries sewed together. In cases where arteries are to be joined permanently the rings are absorbed by the system and the threads taken out.

An informal bridge party wa senjoyed this afternoon at the home of Miss Mary Knight, of Spy Run avenue, who iuivted the members of the Friday bridge club and a few other ladies to meet her aunt, Mrs. Willard Cheney, of Redlands, Cal. Miss Susan Geake was given a pretty party last evening by Miss Anne Sinclair, who had as other guests, the members of the Dinner club to which Miss Geake has always belonged. Progressive hearts was the principal game of the evening and in honor of Miss Geake's approaching nuptials there were seen in the exceedingly pretty decorations the colors of red and white. Heart shaped cards fluttered from the chandeliers and on the supper table there were beautiful red geraniums and ferns in a brass basket and many brass candlesticks tied with tulle bows holding white candles. At each plate was a red heart shaped box of salted nuts and the favorite "heart" appeared in much of the delicious supper's menu.

Another prenuptial party on Tuesday evening was the one given by Miss Kate Fox, of McClellan street, in honor of Miss Marie Eggeman. The table was decorated with snapdragon, both yellow and white flowers, which stood in the center, while around it were placed crystal candlesticks that held white candles hooded in yellow. Ferns of plumosus and maidenhair varieties, contributed to the loveliness of the scene.

"IS MARRIAGE A FAILURE?"

This Evening, Performance to Commence at 9 O'Clock—Matinees Thursday and Friday.

"Is Marrage a Failure?" is an excruciatingly laughable conglomeration of actual happenings which makes this a play of today. It requires the best of acting, therefore the management secured the services of the two clever favorites, Mr. Ernest Anderson and Miss Madge Burt and surrounded them with a cast of unexceptionable merit.

"Is Marriage a Failure?" will be the attraction at the Majestic this evening and Thursday and Friday, with daily matinees.

"ROSALIND AT REDGATE."

Meredith Nicholson's Latest Book Play Next Saturday.

"Rosalind at Redgate," by the author of "The House of a Thousand Candles," will be the offering at the Majestic Saturday, matinee and night. The play is a dramatization of Meredith Nicholson's novel of the same title. The new play is like its predecessor. It is brimful of action from the first act to the last, and rich in humor and brilliant dialogue. The plot concerns a gentle old lady who endeavors to keep her two scapegrace brothers from gaining possession of an even million of money which her father left in her care. The two men have each a lovely daughter, who are as alike as two peas, and it is this wonderful likeness between them upon which the author builds his complications.

"Rosalind at Redgate," according to advance press notices, is proving the big romantic play of the year, and is even exceeding "The House of a Thousand Candles," Mr. Nicholson's first success, in popularity.

TEMPLE THEATER.

Performance Tonight Will Not Start Until After Mardi Gras Parade.

The performance at the Temple theater this evening will not start until after the big Mardi Gras parade. One of the many high class acts on this week's bill is the little playlet, "Ducklins' Run," as played by Walsh, Lynch & Co., and contains some of the best character work seen nowadays and the large audiences certainly are enjoying the skit immensely. Its different than the average vaudeville act and is a distinct novelty.

There are now in Germany about seven million sheep, against 25,000,000 in 1871. They produce about eleven thousand metric tons of wool (metric ton, 2,204.6 pounds), leaving a deficiency of 186,000 tons, covered by import estimated at $107,000,000. Imports have increased about 60 per cent and even then the demand is hardly covered.—Consular Reports.

BEAUTY OF YOUTH.

A young girl should avoid the sombre clothes of a grandmother. Debutantes probably from the new delight of wearing grown-up clothes, fancy themselves immensely in black velvet or satin; if it has some passementerie with chenille or jet, their sense of pride knows no bounds. One might as well encourage a lark to croak. Youth, freshness, girlishness—it is the most beautiful thing in the world! Let a young girl enjoy everything—every moment, every second, every gift of life as it comes—and not try to pretend she is blase. If popularity were but as attainable as age, she need only wait for the impact of its sudden approach.

Models for New Gowns Trying to Stout Women

Absence of Long Lines Seems to Decrease Height and Increase Breadth of Figure.

Stout women will learn with regret that the long lines so becoming to them are absent from the advanced models in gowns designed for the coming season.

The one-piece effects prevail and the panel from bust to hem is seen as often as not, but the long line is broken by the addition of the belt. When a woman is short as well as stout the new styles will double her difficulties in finding models to suit her, for any trimming that breaks the line, especially down the front, apparently decreases the hight of the figure and increases the breadth.

There are two new designs this season—the belted and modified empire—so it would seem that only the tall and the slender types will be able to wear up-to-date fashions becomingly.

The empire is a good model for the short woman, unless she is unduly stout, because the short waist effect makes the skirt longer and length below the waist line suggests height.

Take two persons of the same height, one long waisted and the other short, and the latter will appear to be taller, simply because she takes a longer skirt than the former. On the other hand, the style is not a good one to be adopted by the stout woman, even though she be short, for the reason that it is girlish looking. A short, stout woman in an empire gown suggests the grotesque, better that she try the belt effects, even though they do cut her figure.

The new gowns close in the back invariably, and the waist line is of normal length. Overskirt and tunic effects are still worn, and appear on all house gowns, and those intended for formal wear both afternoon and evening.

Black over royal blue, with trimming of opossum, made another artistic combination.

Though the skirts are on the whole narrow, no exaggerated hobble skirts are seen in the gowns displayed at the best houses. Trains are in evidence. They are not very long, because the narrow width of the skirt precludes the possibility of the long train falling gracefully. As it is, the fabric has a tendency to cling around the feet rather than spread itself on the floor.

Many of the waists are in surplice effect, the folds losing themselves in a crushed girdle of satin, either matching or contrasting with the color of the dress.

A pretty detail that the stout woman may use to advantage is that of bringing the skirt material up on to the waist in two points, ending just below the bust and having a narrow belt of the same material. Sleeves are small and on gowns for house or evening wear are short and in three-quarter length only.

The waist meeting at the skirt in the empire styles is arranged to so overlie the latter that a belt can be entirely dispensed with. Sometimes a simple piping only shows the connection, while again it will be a band of lace edging set on perfectly flat, the border facing upward.

The fashion tailored suit for mornings or general utility has a pleated skirt and coat not longer than half length. Last year's coat can be cut off to meet present fashion demands, and the waist part be taken away from the skirt, but unless the latter is pleated or trimmed it is not going to pass for a new season's model.

JAPAN WOMEN PEARL DIVERS.

The pearl divers of Japan are the women. Along the coast of the bay of Ago and the bay of Goksho the thirteen and fourteen-year-old girls, after they have finished their primary school work, go to sea and learn to dive. They are in the water and learn to swim almost from babyhood and they spend most of their time in the water except in the coldest season, from the end of December to the beginning of February, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Even during the most inclement of seasons they sometimes dive for pearls. They wear a special dress, white underwear and the hair twisted up into a hard knot. The eyes are protected by glasses to prevent the entrance of water. Tubs are suspended from the waist.

A boat in command of a man is assigned to every five or ten women divers to carry them to and from the fishing grounds. When the divers arrive on the grounds they leap into the water at once and begin to gather oysters at the bottom. The oysters are dropped into tubs suspended from their waists.

When these vessels are filled the divers are raised to the surface and jump into the boats. They dive to a depth of from five to thirty fathoms without any special apparatus and retain their breath from one to three minutes. Their ages vary from thirteen to forty years and between twenty-five to thirty-five they are at their prime.

BANISHED.

Coffee Finally Had to Go.

The way some persons cling to coffee even after they know it is doing them harm, is a puzzler. But it is an easy matter to give it up for good when Postum—properly made—is used instead.

A girl writes: "Mother had been suffering with nervous headaches for seven weary years, but kept drinking coffee.

"One day I asked why she did not give up coffee, as a cousin of mine had done who had taken to Postum. But mother was such a slave to coffee she thought it would be terrible to give it up.

"Finally, one day, she made the change to Postum, and soon her headaches disappeared. One morning while she was drinking Postum so freely and with such relish I asked for a taste.

"That started me on Postum and I now drink it more freely than I did coffee, which never comes into our house now.

"A girl friend of mine, one day, saw me drinking Postum and asked if it was coffee. I told her it was Postum and gave her some to take home, but forgot to tell her how to make it.

"The next day she said she did not see how I could drink Postum. I found she had made it like ordinary coffee. So I told her how to make it right, and gave her a cupful I made, boiling it fifteen minutes. She said she never drank any coffee that tasted as good, and now coffee is banished from both our homes."

CROMER OBTAINS DIVORCE.

Former Representative Alleges Abandonment Since 1907.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 4.—George W. Cromer, former representative from the Eighth district, and who was recently defeated in the race for the republican nomination of judge of the Delaware-Grant county superior court, was yesterday morning granted a divorce from Mrs. Frances J. Cromer on the grounds of abandonment. The decree was granted by Judge Patrick H. Elliott in the Delaware superior court. The Cromers were married August 13, 1894, and lived together until March 13, 1907, when, the husband charges, his wife abandoned him without cause and has since refused to live with him. Cromer filed the complaint for divorce when court opened this morning and was granted the decree a few minutes later, Attorney J. T. Walterhouse filing a general denial for Mrs. Cromer. Mrs. Cromer is now said to reside in New York.

Stop Women And Consider

This Fact—that in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers twenty-five years.

The present Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, was for years under her direction, and has ever since her decease continued to advise women.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty causes them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. Such questioning and examination is unnecessary. Without cost you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

MRS. PINKHAM'S STANDING INVITATION:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

SENATE COMMITTEE INVADED HOUSE IN BODY

Wanted a Report in Colorado Legislature and Went After It.

Denver, Co., Oct. 5.—Headed by Lieut. Governor Fitzgerald and backed by numbers of their colleagues, the senate half of a conference committee yesterday invaded the lower house, usurped the speaker's chair and stayed there until the house members of a joint committee presented a report of inability to agree. The action was unprecedented in Colorado and created a wild uproar.

Trouble started when two senators, assigned as members of a joint conference committee on a direct primary bill, reported that they could not agree between themselves on any report on which the house conferees would agree.

"Then let's go over and make them say that can not agree," cried Fitzgerald, and followed by a throng of senators he brushed past doorkeepers and sergeant-at-arms, and strode to the middle of the house floor, later assuming Speaker Luber's chair, when arose to protest.

THE PATHS OF GLORY.

Namesakes of Great Men in Ohio Poorhouse.

George Washington Baker, Dewey Baker and Roosevelt Hobart Baker have gone to the Van Wert county (Ohio) poorhouse. George Washington Baker, the father, went handcuffed, having become violent when the local humane officer took charge of the family.

Charles Kirk was called to Wilshire to investigate a family of five children, starving and half clad, who were begging from house to house.

The family came from Indiana about two years ago. The father is a day laborer, but has worked little for months, and the family was in distress. Soon after the Bakers arrived one of the larger boys accidentally shoot and killed his little brother. The boy is now serving a term in the workhouse for another offense.

When the authorities took charge of the family the father became abusive and had to be handcuffed. He, with Dewey, aged ten; Avery, seven; Cecil, five, and Roosevelt Hobart, four, was sent to the poorhouse pending action by the probatae court. The mother and her babe were cared for in the village.

GERMLESS PAPER MONEY.

Spokane Bank Mixes Carbolic Acid With Ink When Signing Bills.

The officials of a bank in Spokane, Wash., have hit upon a plan for keeping paper money free from germs. They are mixing carbolic acid with the ink they use in signing new bills. They make the positive assertion that no germ will remain on a banknote that carries with it the pervasive and persuasive odor of carbolic acid.

The bacteriologists are yet to be heard from as to the efficacy of the Spokane method. Waiving the question as to whether it will do all its discoverers claim for it, there arises the greater question as to whether the public will take kindly to the acid-flavored currency. There is reason to believe that most people would prefer to take their chances with the germs.

It was announced some time ago that the United States treasury department had discovered a method of washing paper money and thus relieving it of accumulated dirt and germs. The laundering process, however, would not solve the problem. Obviously, much of the money in circulation is in such a dilapidated condition that the government laundry could not handle it. Then, bills once washed would quickly accumulate a new stock of germs.

MUSHROOM EXHIBIT.

(Consul C. B. Hurst, Plauen, Germany.)

There is probably no country in the world where mushrooms are more highly prized for food than in Saxony. Although it is recognized that their nutritive properties are moderate, nevertheless mushrooms are extensively used here in place of ordinary vegetables, as well as for soups, sauces and garnishing.

Owing to the profusion in which mushrooms are found in this neighborhood, they are alike available for poor and rich. Several varieties are picked for drying and are kept throughout the year. A wet season is harmful in this locality, but, as it is always productive of a heavy crop of mushrooms of all kinds, there is a compensating advantage for many people. It is a common sight to see operatives on a Sunday or holiday, or after closing hours on weekdays, wander into the woodlands and the meadows surrounding Saxon factory towns to gather mushrooms. They know the right spots to hunt for edible species, and in two or three hours come back with baskets, pails and handbags filled.

On market days the peasants offer in the market places great piles of favorite mushrooms. Musnrooms, however, cannota be sold indiscriminately. Official inspectors visit each stand and a rigid examination is made. If the mushrooms are not fresh and sound in every way the whole mass is at once removed and destroyed. If by chance unsound mushrooms should pass this inspection, there are signs by which any average cook can tell, after they have been placed upon the stove, if there be still any latent taint. Hence there is little doubt about the wholesomeness of the mushrooms by the time they reach the table.

The mushroom has become an article of diet in the Saxon household to such an extent, and the interest in its development and use has taken such hold on all classes of people, that a mushroom exhibition is a popular event in this district. In an exhibition now being held there are about 100 varieties of mushrooms displayed in moss or in grass, according to the manner in which they grow. They are divided into five groups, known as savory, edible, worthless, suspicious and poisonous mushrooms. There is also exhibited a specially constructed wagon for gathering mushrooms, adapted for the use of school classes when making excursions in the season. Preserved mushrooms are also shown, together with instructive literature as to gathering, drying, preserving and cooking.

The Saxon government, in order to prevent any likelihood of poisoning through imperfect knowledge of the various species of edible fungi, has directed that regular, systematic instruction be imparted in the elementary schools to familiarize children thoroughly with mushrooms. As illustrations and models are insufficient to acquaint pupils with the different species, it is directed that the kinds that are likely to be confused with poisonous varieties shall be displayed in some appropriate place in the school. Children are encouraged to gather specimens and bring them to the teacher, when the mushrooms will be studied anad classified.

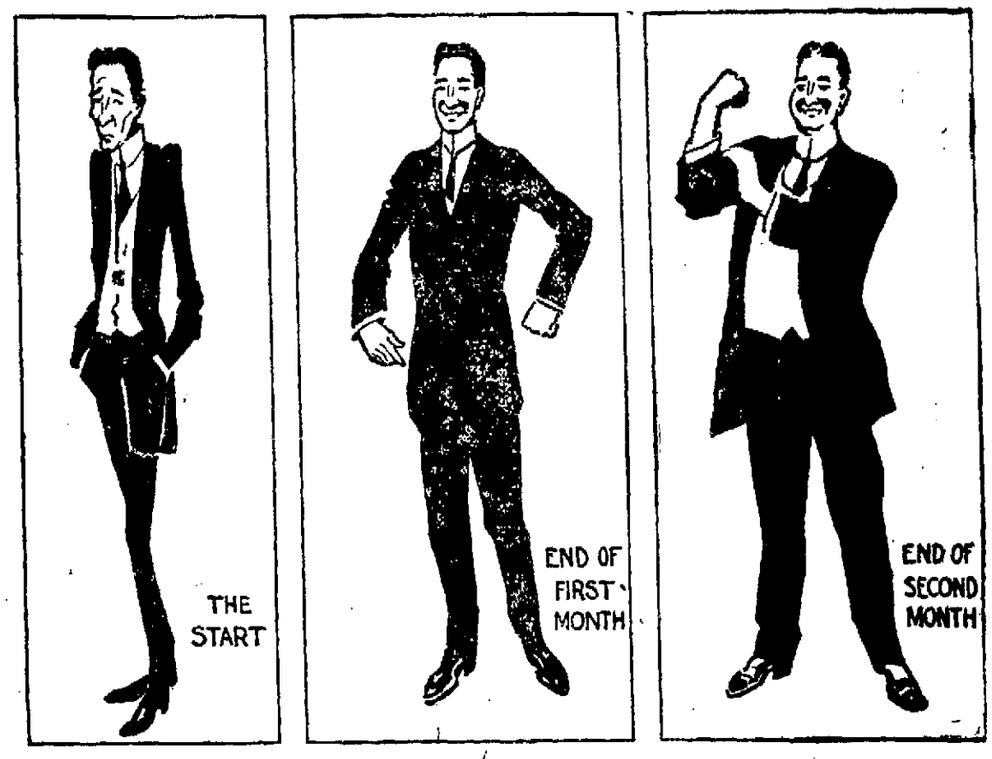
Remarkable Result of the New Tissue Builder Protone, In Many Cases of Run-Down Men and Women.

Prove It Yourself by Sending Coupon Below for a 50 Cent Package, Free.



"By George, I never saw anything like the effects of that new treatment, Protone, for the building up of weight and lost nerve force. It acted more like a miracle than a medicine," said a well-known gentleman yesterday in speaking of the revolution that had taken place in his condition. "I began to think that there was nothing on earth that could make me fat. I tried tonics, digestives, heavy eating, diets, milk, beer and almost everything else you could think of, but without result. I had been thin for years, and began to think it was natural for me to be that way. Finally I read about the remarkable processes brought about by the use of Protone, so I decided to try it myself. Well, when I look at myself in the mirror now, I think it is somebody else. I have put on just 30 pounds during the last month and never felt stronger or more 'nervy' in my life."

Protone is a powerful inducer of nutrition, increases cell growth, makes perfect assimilation of food, increases the number of blood corpuscles, and as a necessary result builds up muscles and solid, healthy flesh, and rounds out the figure.

For women who can never appear stylish in anything they wear because of their thinness, this remarkable treatment may prove a revelation. It is a beauty-maker as well as form builder and nerve strengthener.

It will cost you nothing to prove the remarkable effects of this treatment. It is absolutely non-injurious to the most delicate system. The Protone Company will send to anyone who sends name and address a free 50c package of Protone, with instructions, to prove that it does the work. They will also send you their book on "Why You Are Thin," free of charge, giving facts which will probably astonish you. Send coupon below—TODAY—with your name and address.

Waddell Did Not Show Up Yellow in the Big Games

St. Louis, Oct. 4.—The only George Edward Rube Waddell, former Philadelphia Athletic and St. Louis Brownie, stands vindicated.

For five years charges have been floating hither and thither that Rube laid down in the world's series between the Athletics and New York Giants, or that he was bought off by gamblers. Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics then and now, gives both allegations the lie.

"Rube would have been the happiest mortal in the world if he could have pitched in that series," said Connie. "His heart and soul were wrapped up in taking a couple of falls out of the National league pennant winners, but a combination of circumstances put him out of the running.

"We clinched the 1905 flag on Sept. 4, just as the season of the year when the taboo sign is placed on straw hats, and the Boston fans had a right merry good time destroying the headgear of those brave fans who had dared to come to the game with straws. Rube Waddell enjoyed the unusual pastime a little bit more than any one else.

"En route to Philadelphia Andy Coakley, who was then a pitcher on my club, boarded the train, and Rube, who had taken a couple of drinks, immediately spied the straw hat which Coakley wore. He recalled the Boston straw hat barbecue and immediately made for Coakley.

"Andy knew what was in the air and put his hat behind him and underneath his coat. Rube was determined and made after Coakley. The latter had dropped his uniform roll to the floor and clumsy old Rube stumbled over it and fell headlong in the aisle. Any time Rube falls you think it is an earthquake, and it was surprising that the train was not wrecked.

"By the time Rube picked himself up he was as mad as a hornet. He was bent on fighting Coakley, but the other players interfered. My son came into the coach where I was reading and told me that I had better go back where the players were and take a hand, as they were fighting.

"I hustled up and had just come out on the platform, when I found the Rube there crying as if his heart would break. I asked him the cause of all the trouble and he unbosomed himself to me. I told him that he was the one in error and that it was up to him to make up with the players.

"He promised to do so, and upon entering the coach he approached Coakley, kissed him on the forehead and asked his forgiveness. He then shook hands with Danny Murphy and everything was lovely.

"The Rube wanted to be alone in his misery, and, talking off his coat, he rolled up his sleeves and sat down by an open window. He caught cold in his pitching arm and the next morning the member was so lame he could not lift it above his head. I thought at first that Rube was phoneying, but when the big fellow came to me and cried in pain, I realized that we had all been doing him an injustice.

"He begged of me to have his arm treated so that he could work against the Giants, as he was confident he could beat McGraw's men every game he pitched. He also said that he didn't want a cent of the receipts, but simply wanted to prove to his teammates that he was not yellow. The arm was cared for day after day, but refused to respond to treatment, and when the series opened Rube's wing was as sore as ever."

Has Signed With Indianapolis

JAMES THOMAS BURKE.

When Indianapolis takes the field the first of the year under the management of James Thomas Burke, every baseball fan in Fort Wayne will watch with interest the race in the American association and all of them will root hard for him to get the club out of the rut into which it has fallen and which kept it down near the sub-cellar for two years.

Basing its prediction on the fact that Burke was the logical candidate for the place The Sentinel selected him as manager of the Indians for next season the same day that Charlie Carr's resignation was announced. His personal popularity in Indianapolis brought about his selection by Owner W. H. Watkins.

A season in Fort Wayne made the late manager so popular with fandom that he will be keenly regretted. At the same time his friends will rejoice with him in the fact that he has taken a place that will yield him a better salary. He got all here that any Class B owner could afford to pay as Claude H. Varnell wanted a good article of ball for his patrons and he paid his manager a goodly sum to furnish it.

Jimmy Burke is of the kind to keep baseball on the high level it has attained in the sporting world. Always alive to the best interests of his owner, clean in his personal habits, a thorough student of the game and always in condition to play ball he has merited all of the good things his friends have said about him. He maintains discipline, requires his men to play hard all the time and he would have been welcomed to Fort Wayne if he had decided to try another season in Class B.

Announcement of his selection as manager of Indianapolis was made yesterday. He had promised he would notify Claude Varnell of his intentions early in the fall so that the Fort Wayne owner could get into the market for a new manager without delay.

Sporting News in Tablets

Cobb is the first American league player to reach the century mark in runs scored.

Battling Nelson starts his "come back" stunt October 10, when he meets Monte Dale in a ten round bout in Kansas City.

Johnny McGraw feels confident that the Giants will defeat the New York Highlanders in the postseason games.

Providing he posts a forfeit to guarantee making weight, Packey McFarland will get a chance to box Jack Goodman, the clever eastern lightweight.

The best young pitchers picked up by American league clubs late this year are Nelson of the St. Louis Browns, and Blanding of the Naps.

Eddie Collins, the great Athletic second sacker, bats left handed. He walks across the plate after he has reached across with his bat and draws a line in the sand.

Pete King, Ted Kaylor, Bill Hillinger and a number of ball players who have returned to town are arranging for a barnstorming trip in the vicinity of Fort Wayne.

Clark Griffith wanted Dave Altiser, drafted from Minneapolis, to report after Bob Bescher was hurt and didn't know where to locate him. He inserted a want ad in a Chicago paper and found him in a day.

Bob Bescher is still at the German Deaconess hospital, Cincinnati, taking treatment for his injured hand. He will not be able to play any more this season, but will not be permanently crippled.

The Cubs count on Cook and Clark, two new pitchers recently garnered from the bushes, for great work next season. They will be needed—Brown and Reulbach are showing signs of wear and tear.

Billie Hamilton has been released by Lynn, according to a statement he himself made recently. It has been understood all season that Billie would be canned if he didn't win the pennant. He is said to be one of the bidders for the Lawrence franchise.

D. A. Fletcher, who is promoting the new baseball league since the national commission shut down his scheme for an all-star combination tour, was requested to leave the Havlin hotel at Cincinnati for fear the patronage of the ball teams would be lost by his presence.

HOF BRAU TOOK THE SERIES BY TWO TO ONE

Heidelbergs Strong in Last Game and Stopped Shut Out.

Harry Wiebke's Hof Brau entry in the first Brunswick league grabbed the first and second games from Dan Clemens' Heidelbergers, but Capt. Tuttle and his quintet steamed up a bit in the last lap and came through with a victory, saving a shut-out in their opening scrap. Captain John Leist and Jack Kelly fought for first honors, but the latter tabbed 204 in the second game, beating the leader one pin and taking the average by a few points.

Charlie Brink captured the high individual mark in the pastiming with 205, his opening score, but he hit the toboggan in the last game and the average went to Tom Vincent. The scores:

CONFESSES TO BIG ROBBERY.

Messman of Steamer Tells of Theft of $12,000 Gold.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 5.—Thomas Buckley, alias Williams, messman on the steamship City of Seattle, confessed yesterday to the robbery of the mail room of the vessel Sunday night when more than $12,000 in gold bullion and currency was stolen from the registered pouches. Buckley was arraigned before United States Commissioner W. D. Totten. As soon as the warrant was read Buckley said:

"I did it, but I did not know what I was doing."

Mike Pendergast and Gustaf J. Bergtin, who were arrested in connection with the robbery, were ordered released by the district attorney.

GOLDEN WINS GAME WITH TWO-BASE BINGLE

Recruit Shows Good Control in Game Against the Pirates.

Roy Golden had control in his game against the Pirates and in addition he showed some prowess with the bat when he poled a double in the fifth inning that scored the winning run. Bade Myers said he would be a great pitcher if he ever gained control. He worked half a season with Dayton in 1909, but was let go because of his inability to get the ball over the plate. He held Pittsburg to three hits, one of which went to Carey and another to Bill McKechnie. Carey's hit scored Tommy Leach with the only Pittsburg tally.

Danny Hofman starred for the champion Cubs in the closing game with Cincinnati when he landed a triple after Kane had been passed and Sheckard had hit for a single. Both men completed the circuit on Hofman's rap. Rowan was hit only three times but the pass beat him.

Crandall was hit seventeen times during the New York and Boston engagement but that was nothing to what happened Mattern, Frock, Ferguson and Burke who were touched up for twenty-one safe drives. The Giants scored seventeen runs while the Doves were piling up nine.

GRACE DEFEATS THE CHAMPION IN A FAST RACE

Colorado E. Goes Down in Big Event at Lexington Track.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 5.—The thirty-eighth annual fall meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association opened here, and, true to tradition, the racing proved sensational and the large crowd present, which embraced horsemen from all parts of the United States and Canada, from Europe and even from far away Australia, saw Colorado E., the champion 3-year-old trotter, previously unbeaten this season and a top-heavy favorite, go down to defeat in the eighteenth renewal of the Kentucky Futurity, the premier classic of the harness turf, to the winner of which went $10,000.

It was Grace, a chestnut filly owned by Captain David Shaw, of Cleveland, O., and driven with masterful skill by Michael McDevitt, which caused the downfall of the supposedly invincible colt, and it took five grand heats to accomplish the task, the average time of which eclipsed all previous races of such length by 3-year-olds. The slowest heat was trotted in 2:10 and the average time of the five was 2:08 1-5.

ATHLETICS TOOK 18 GAMES IN THE SERIES

Have Beaten Boston in All But Two Games—New York Wins.

In eighteen of the twenty games played between the Athletics and the Boston speed boys this season Connie Mack's club has taken away victories. This includes the game of yesterday, when Krause was hit seven times and allowed only one run. Boston injected a couple of errors into the game that helped the champions to win. Cicotte held the opposition to half a dozen hits.

Four pitchers who took part in the game between Washington and New York were pounded for twenty-five hits and the Highlanders captured the battle by a score of eight to five. Otey and Moyer, a couple of the recruits picked up by the Senators, were used while Warhop succeeded Quinn after he had been routed. Somerlott had a good day with the bat. He got a couple of hits and scored a run. The scores:

HYENA IS KILLING ITSELF.

Captive at National Zoo Is Gnawing Off One of Its Legs.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Persistently gnawing off its left hind leg and drinking its own blood, a spotted hyena of the breeding, not the laughing variety, is committing progressive suicide at the National Zoological Garden.

The animal, a gift from Adam Forepaugh in 1895, began the process of self-destruction several days ago and, before its keepers discovered the cause of the injuries, it had chewed the flesh from the paw to the middle joint of the leg. It is now in a state of physical exhaustion, and keepers at the Zoo fear that it will be necessary to kill the animal. Dementia is believed to have attacked the hyena.

Several years ago there was a similar case at the National Zoo.

GRANT SEEKS AUTO CONTROL.

War Department Leader Says United States Should Have Proviso.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—A plan to make all private automobiles available for military service in time of necessity was suggested by Maj. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant in his annual report made public yesterday.

"It seems to me," he states, "it would be wise if the national government would pass laws that would cause the registration of all automobiles capable of transporting four or more passengers and that the owners of these machines be obliged legally to transfer them, on demand, to the government for military uses, for a sum of money not greater than the original cost of the machine. If this were done the government would have at hand, and with little cost, a means of transportation for the rapid movement of troops."

DOUBT ABOUT EDDIE WHEELER AS A MANAGER

Telegrams Fail to Get Response from Him or Varnell.

Whether Eddie Wheeler is free to sign as manager of the Fort Wayne team and whether he would be acceptable to Claude H. Varnell if he is at liberty are questions that are in doubt for the reason that telegrams sent by The Sentinel to both of them remain unanswered.

Before the season closed Wheeler said he would like to be the successor to Jimmy Burke and Varnell was notified of the fact. This application was made with the understanding that the South Bend leader would not ask the place unless it became certain that Burke would not return.

Wheeler at the time stated he did not think he would retain the South Bend franchise and wanted the place here in preference to several others because Fort Wayne is near his home at Grand Rapids and he would be able to spend a good part of the time with his mother.

Apparently the friction that existed at the close of the season has been relieved as the following from the South Bend Tribune of yesterday indicates that Wheeler has changed his mind:

"Eddie Wheeler will, judging from a statement made of his present plans, assuredly return to South Bend next year and lead the Bronchos to another pennant, or, at least, give the seven other clubs in this league a run for the bunting.

"'Everything has been settled satisfactorily between Mr. Annis and myself, and I certainly expect to manage the Bronchos again in 1911,' Mr. Wheeler said.

"That Wheeler is to head the Bronchos again is a fact which the fans should herald with visions of more fame and high class baseball for the city on the bend, for Eddie will have a strong nucleus for his 1911 club, very few of the pennant winners being absent from the local next season. Holmes, Schmick, Koehler, Wheeler, Krey, Smith, Lindsey, Martin, Myers, and possible Corbitt will be seen carorting around at Springbrook again and a few classy youngsters, similar to McCarthy and Carey, will do the rest."

Mexican Robbers Blow in Loot at Rate of $75 Per Hour.

San Francisco, Oct. 5.—A tale of extravagant living was told the police yesterday by Cesario Munez, who with Alfonso Garcia, is under arrest in this city charged with robbing J. M. Sumaga, a millionaire mine owner of the City of Mexico, of $30,000 in jewels and nearly $2,000 in cash. Munez says then Garcia proposed that they set about spending the money without delay. They did so.

Munez estimates that during their waking hours they lived at the rate of $75 an hour.

When the men were taken into custody, the detectives recovered $583 in money and $1,000 in jewels. Munez, they say, has promised to take them to the place where the remainder of the loot is hidden.

Soffel Made Good This Year

Here's word from Gus Soffel, who was a member of the champion Stogies in 1909 and who after being drafted up to the majors fell back to Louisville and was turned over to Hartford, Conn. The fans at Hartford are rejoicing over the fact that the major leagues, and even the class A organizations, overlooked a bet when they failed to draft Gus Soffel, captain and second baseman of the Hartford club. Soffel was a member of the Louisville club at the beginning of the 1910 season, but Heine Peitz, who was then manager of the club, thought Soffel was not good enough for this company, and a can was attached to the player.

In the opening game of the season at Columbus, and, in fact, the whole series, Soffel played a great game, and his work was mentioned by scribes all over the American association circuit. However, not being able to keep up his rapid gait, he slowed down quite a bit, and the club decided to sell him to Hartford. Immediately upon his arrival at Hartford he was put in the game, and made good from the very start. After a couple of weeks he was made captain of the club.

The past season Soffel was the class of the second baseman in the Connecticut league, having a batting average of .308. Thirty-three stolen bases show that he was no snail on the bags.

S.S.S.

CURES BLOOD POISON

The only way to cure Constitutional Blood Poison is to REMOVE its cause from the blood. Trying to kill the germs within the system or counteract disease cells in the circulation with powerful mineral medicines not only always results in failure, but also weakens the more delicate and vital tissues, and allows the original trouble to attack other portions of the body.

It is solely on the principle of purifying the blood that S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison, and it does this because it is the one blood medicine that is able to remove every particle of the insidious virus from the circulation. It does not work on the principle of killing one poison by taking another, or trying to dry up the germs in the blood, but S. S. S. cleanses the circulation and REMOVES the cause.

Contagious Blood Poison is a deceptive and stealthy trouble. It begins in an insignificant manner, usually the appearance of a tiny pimple or sore being the only outward evidence of its presence. But down in the blood the treacherous infection is at work, and in a short time the victim finds his body is affected from head to foot. The mouth and throat ulcerate, skin eruptions break out, sores and ulcers appear on the body, brown splotches disfigure the skin, the glands in the groin swell, and as the poison becomes more thoroughly saturated into the blood the hair and eyebrows come out.

Contagious Blood Poison is too dangerous to trifle with. Medicines which merely check the progress of the poison for a time and leave the insidious germs smouldering in the blood, have brought misery and disappointment to thousands. Faithfully they took such treatment for months, perhaps years, only to find when it was left off that the vicious disease was ready to crop out again in all its former destructiveness.

Contagious Blood Poison can be cured only when the blood has been made pure. This is just what S. S. S. does and has been doing for forty years, and it does it so perfectly that not the slightest trace of the old infection is left to cause trouble in the future. S. S. S. goes into the circulation, and while removing the cause makes the blood fresh, rich and healthy. This causes a general upbuilding of the entire system, and when S. S. S. has made a cure in a case of Constitutional Blood Poison the patient experiences a change to vigorous, robust health.

S. S. S. is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks. It does not contain the slightest particle of Mercury, Potash or any other mineral substance to upset the stomach, affect the bowels, or inflame the delicate membranes and tissues of the body. On the other hand it is a fine tonic, made entirely of botanical ingredients which aid the system in every way to overcome the effects of Contagious Blood Poison.

We have a specially prepared book on Home Treatment of this trouble, which contains much valuable information to be found nowhere else. We will send this book without charge to all who write and request it. We will also give free any medical advice you may ask for. If you are suffering with Contagious Blood Poison write today for this valuable book, and learn how to cure yourself at home.

COVERED WITH SORES.

I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards spread all over my body. These soon broke out into sores. Before I became convinced that the doctors could do me no good I had spent a hundred dollars. I then tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S. S. S. I was greatly improved, and was delighted with the result. The large red splotches on my chest began to grow smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger and my appetite greatly improved. I was soon entirely well, and have been ever since. H. L. MEYERS,

HEARST TO BOSS BY WIRELESS

Will Advise Independence League Convention of His Wishes.

New York, Oct. 5.—For the first time in the history of politics, a political convention is to be bossed by wireless. William R. Hearst is at sea and his Independent league will meet to name a state ticket before he sets foot on land.

It is supposed now that Stimson will be indorsed for governor and Hearst himself nominated for lieutenant governor.

But the truth of this supposition will not be known until the Hertzian and Hearstian waves begin to roll in from the Atlantic.

The convention will be called to order tomorrow afternoon at Cooper Union, and probably will consume the first day with organization.

OUR FEET ARE GROWING LARGER

For Women, Fives-and-a-ahlf Are the Average Shoes Called For.

(St. Louis Republic.)

Something is radically wrong with the average human foot. It is getting longer, wider, knottier, more calloused and covered with bunions every year. Conceal it as much as we possibly can, we finally have to admit that our feet are getting bigger, uglier, more grotesquely misshapen.

In spite of our fads of athleticism and the vagaries of the Kneipp cure, in the very teeth of the renaissance of the Grecian sandal and others of the barefooted cults, the shoe men of the country are whispering among themselves that the really shapely foot is one with "the roses [illegible] year."

Shoe salesmen have grown accustomed to watching the frantic efforts of a woman with a wide No. 7 foot trying to crowd it into a No. 4 shoe made on a narrow last. The men are just as bad. Men and women and little children, we have all squeezed our burning and protesting feet into shoes two sizes too small for us, until the feet of the whole nation are aching in unison. The abused feet finally have their revenge. The torture cannot go on forever and the twisted toes and warped arches remain uncomplaining. We have spent a lot of time and a mint full of money on our feet in this country within the last half dozen years. The chiropodist has smiled and waxed fat because of our searchings for relief. Our feet have been massaged and pedicured, steamed and witchhazel, and saturated with tonics, but the ache remains. They are getting wider, longer, uglier and bigger every day. The pedal extremities of Milady of Vanity Fair have increased their size by two numbers in the last half dozen years.

Ten years ago the shoes of milady were made in sizes running from "thirteens" to "fives." The number three and one-half was about the average. Times and feet have changed; the demand now ranges between the numbers of two and a half to ten, and fives and a half are the sizes most often called for.

Ask the shoe man why our feet are growing so much larger and he will give you a half dozen reasons therefor. People do not walk as much as they did a few years ago. The muscles of the feet are no longer properly exercised. The street car and the automobile have made them more useless appendages. This is especially true of the cities, where the pedestrian, the genuine walker, is unknown. When they want to go to some place six or seven blocks away folks climb on a street car and ride to their destination. They look upon walking as a useless waste of energy and their feet become mere useless weights to be dragged around. The real walker does not have any trouble with his feet. They are not growing longer or wider, thicker or uglier. He is using them as they should be used.

LAFOLLETTE DOING WELL.

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 5.—According to Dr. Phillip Fox, Senator LaFollette's physician, the senator who wasoperated on yesterday is "doing nicely." "We are much pleased at Senator LaFollette's condition," said Dr. Fox. "He had a good sleep after midnight and is feeling fine today."

CALEDONIAN CAUTION.

M'l Flora is a canny Scot—
Too canny, truth to tell—
For, though I'd have her share my lot,
She'll no commit hersel'.

I said, "Will you my sweetheart be?"
She answered: "Hoots! You men!"
I pressed her, "Do you care for me?"
She said, "I dinna ken."

"What! Don't you know your mind?"
I cried.
She said, "It's warm the day."
I asked her, "Will you be my bride?"
She said, "I couldna say."

"Come, lassie, shall it be this spring?"
She cried, "You're verra free!"
"Then, tell me, may I buy the ring?"
"Man, please yoursel'," says she.

Before the chancel steps we stood,
St. Giles' Kirk intil.
The parson asked me if I would.
Of course I said, "I will."

But when it came to Flo's reply
The nearest that she'd go
Was just to murmur cautiously,
"I wouldna say I'll no."

Their Verdict.

"Fetch the body," ordered the foreman of a Texas coroner's jury.

The body was laid before them. The jury made a careful examination and questioned the attending surgeon.

"Whar was he shot?"

"Square through the heart."

"Dead in the center o' the heart?"

"Right in the center."

"Who shot him?"

"Jake Daniels."

A dozen witnesses declared that Jake fired the shot, and Jake himself admitted it. The jury consulted softly for some time.

"Well, gentlemen of the jury," said the coroner, "what's your verdict?"

"Waal, jedge," answered the foreman, "we've come to the conclusion that Jake Daniels is the dandiest shot in these parts, and don't you forget it."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Steed Smarter Than Soldier.

Trooper Brown of the British territorials was "green." His horse, likewise unaccustomed to war, seemed from its appearance and general structure to have been not very long ago a dray horse. But it was a wise animal and had learned through experience that to keep one's mouth shut is to avoid many troubles. Much practice had enabled it to keep its mouth shut very successfully—and very tight. On the first morning parade in Trooper Brown's first camp the lieutenant rode down the lines of his company. "All the men turned out, sergeant major?" he queried. "Yes, sir," said the sergeant major, "all except Trooper Brown. He's waiting for his horse to yawn so's he can slip the bit in, but the worst of it is, sir, the brute doesn't seem a bit tired."—Dundee Advertiser.

Naturally.

"We gave our preacher a purse of $500 last Sunday, and also a beautiful album containing the pictures and signatures of the people who had contributed the money. He was greatly affected and almost with tears streaming down his cheeks said he valued the album much more than the purse."

"What happened then?"

"We went home with diminished confidence in our preacher."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Have found the ones they think divine,
And I have found her, too—but, oh,

THE SENTINEL

Fort Wayne's Greatest Newspaper

Ask them especially about that big twenty-eight-page paper that THE SENTINEL gives its readers EVERY SATURDAY.

They will tell you that it contains everything of interest that happens in and around Fort Wayne and surrounding towns. All the news of all the world, gathered by the wonderful Associated Press. No corner of the world is so remote that the Associated Press does not reach it, and its wires run into The Sentinel building.

Next Saturday's Sentinel will be an especially interesting paper, with its twenty-eight pages full of news and high-class miscellaneous reading, and there will be full page articles, finely illustrated, on

Duels With the Underworld

The first of a new series of articles on crimes and criminals. This week this page is written by William P. Sheridan, the man with the camera eye, who once seeing a criminal never forgets him. Mr. Sheridan was formerly lieutenant of the New York police and knows more famous criminals by sight than any other man in the world. He tells how organized detective skill battles with and overcomes craft and cunning in detecting and preventing crime.

On the Threshold

Telling of the arrival of our brothers and sisters from across the great water, and their entrance into the promised land. From Ellis Island the newcomers peer feverishly into the great new world. Little human sidelights in a big picture.

Sport Royal—Gunning for Ruffed Grouse

With a wise dog, a good comrade and a clear day the enthusiast can find no better combination and no game more worthy of pursuit. Handsome illustrations showing the dog and man at work. How the grouse fools the sportsman and how he watches the hunter.

Our Nine Man Invasion of Brazil

Told by one of the men who took part in an adventure that reads like extravagant fiction. Desperate hand to hand fighting—perilous flight and memorable capture.

Practical Fashions for the School Outfit

Is the title for the Misses' page next Saturday. It shows the dainty dresses the young lady should wear on the different occasions of her school life. Another talk on social amenities for the school girl. Braiding ornamental fancy work. Easily made guest room desk sets.

Skibby Wakes a Dreamer

Skibby finds his old friends the Ingles family in hard circumstances. He tells Bart where he can get a job. Bart don't want a job. He intends becoming president of the United States. No small position for him. Skibby takes him to a moving picture show. Bart finds that a messenger boy can be as great a hero as Richard the Lion Hearted. He takes the job as messenger boy and puts off becoming president until later.

The Widow Wise

Just as dainty and charming as last week. This time she falls in love with the riding master, a German count in disguise. Just before the wedding she discovers that the count is also engaged to her dressmaker. She compels the count to marry—the dressmaker. Illustrated in two colors.

News and Views of Farmers

The agricultural page that is looked on as authority by all readers of The Sentinel. Every idea advanced has been tried and proven by men of experience—men who make their living and fortunes in agriculture.

Did the End Justify

A story page by Olivia Howard Dunvar, a fiction writer of note. Some of us would say that the end did justify, others that it would not. It is a question that each has to decide for themselves. Read and form your own conclusions.

The Conway Dinner

The story on the Boys' and Girls' page. Grandfather invites the Conways to dinner, but as grandfathers sometimes do, got his dates mixed and had them come a week earlier than was intended. They arrive when mother is away and Betty and Hetty have to prepare the dinner and entertain their aristocratic guests.

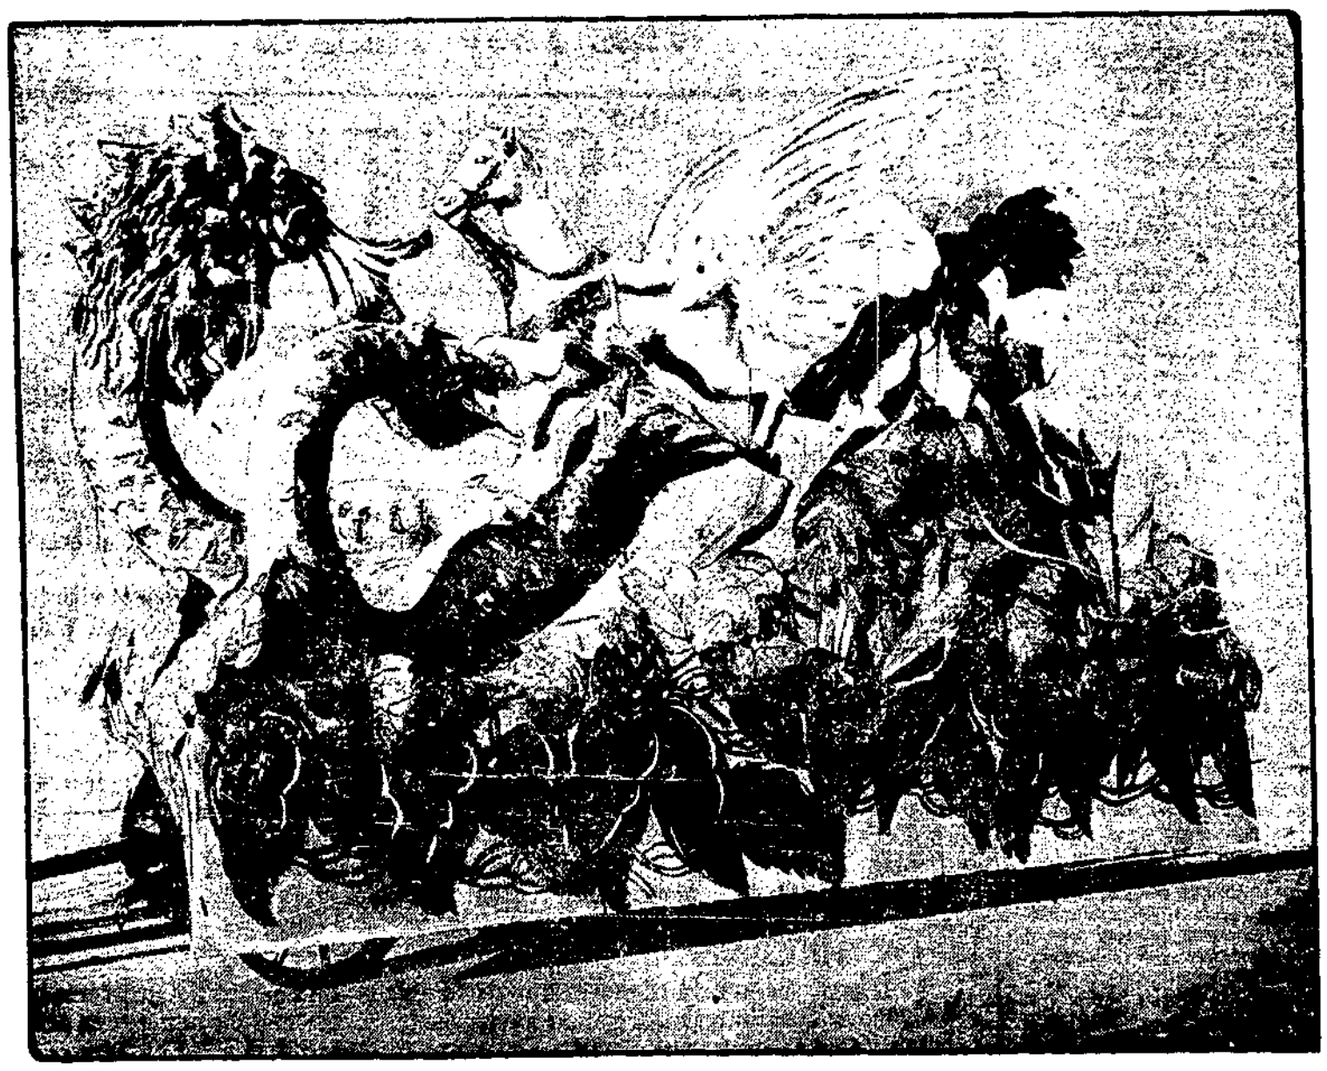
SHRINERS' PAGEANT WILL BE GORGEOUS IN SPLENDOR

Twenty Elaborate Floats, Illustrating "The Freaks of Fable," Were Brought from New Orleans Especially for Mizpah Temple's Big Spectacle, Postponed to Thursday Evening in the Mardi Gras Program.



ONE OF THE FLOATS—PEGASUS AND CHIMERA.

Car No. 1—The King.

Here, upon a dazzling throne which occupies the highest position in the very center of the tableau, sits his carnival majesty himself, clad in robes of surpassing richness and wearing the scintillating jewels which the court artificers in Fort Wayne have prepared expressly for the royal use. Sparkling draperies sweep down from the base of the throne, and are caught in exquisite folds at each corner of the car, where clusters of flowers and heraldic devices are likewise affixed. The vast butterfly waves his Tyrian wings above the royal head. C. A. Dunkelberg will impersonate the carnival king.

Car No. 2—Titis Car.

Immediately after the royal car follows one of scarcely inferior interest, the one which discovers to the eager eyes of thousands of spectators the theme which his majesty deigns to illustrate. It is "The Freaks of Fable." A fantastic mass of autumnal foliage is heaped together upon the car, and assumes the form—shadowy, perhaps, indistinct without question, but nevertheless definite to the eye of the imagination—of a fantastic creature, half rustic, half animal, wholly extravagant and upon his enormous wings the title of the pageant is illuminated in glowing letters.

Car No. 3—The Griffin.

In the works of the old poets and romantic writers, whether of the classic ages, or of mediaval times, or of the renaissance, will be found descriptions of strange creatures, sometimes animal, sometimes bird, sometimes startling combinations of both, or even of beast and bird and human being. These chimeras are the "Freaks of Fable," which Rex illustrates today. The first of these which he presents is the griffin. The griffin is mentioned in works written 500 years before Christ, but the middle ages believed it to be the guardian of buried treasures in Bactria. To it were attributed the body and hind quarters of the lion, the head and neck of the eagle. Rex shows this great creature flying through the air and bearing on its back an armed man. It is about to attack the moslem knights who have come to its lair in search of the treasures heaped in the rear of the car, and around the glitering heaps of which stand groups of winsome maidens.

Car No. 4—Scylla and Charybdis.

In the straits of Messina, not far from the stricken city of that name, there were, in the time of Homer—or so the poets would have us believe—on one side a terrible animal dwelling in a whirlpool, on the other a many-armed monster whose home was a rock and a cave. Every vessel passing between them—and all that entered the strait must pass between them—paid its toll of sailors, those who did not fall victims to Scylla being snatched from the deck of Charybdis. Rex shows how these two fabled animals wrought their will upon the mariners of antiquity. In the foreground Scylla lifts her dreadful hands and threatens the occupants of a little vessel, who vainly turn in the opposite direction, only to confront Charybdis in a similarly menacing attitude. Sea monsters writhe their slimy but glittering lengths amidst the waves on every side.

Car No. 5—The Hydra.

In the marshes along the sea coast of Greece in ancient times there was supposed to exist a terrible creature, the offspring of Echidna and Typhon, having a hundred heads and spouting from as many mouths a subtle and deadly venom. The destruction of this frightful beast was one of the labors accomplished by Hercules. In the exquisite tableau in which Rex has embodied for us this fantastic animal, we see the hero, club in hand, as he advances to the contest. Hydra sprawls in front of him; behind him a Grecian king and his attendants look on in fascinated terror; while overhead curls the fronts of some singular forms of Greek vegetation.

Car No. 6—Pegasus and Chimera.

A helmeted warrior riding upon a winged horse advances valiantly to do battle with a horrible thing, which with its triple head of lion, goat and serpent, crouches dismally at the van of the car. It is the Chimera, mother of the Sphinx, who after ravaging the fertile fields of Lycia, is about to meet her deserved fate at the hands of Bellerophon. The hero having by the help of Minerva tamed the fleet Pegasus, succeeds in overcoming his adversary; after which Pegasus ascends to heaven and becomes the bearer of the thunderbolts of Jove. In modern literature Pegasus is described as the horse of the Muses, but this is erroneous, and Rex is quite right in showing him as one of the participants in the great struggle with the Chimera.

Car No. 7—The Phoenix.

The Phoenix was contributed to the galaxy of fabulous freaks by Egypt, where a shrine dedicated to it existed in Heliopolis. Once in every five centuries the wondrous bird visited the spot, and then withdrew, to immolate itself upon the pyre which it had erected for the purpose. From the flames a new and youthful Phoenix arose, to live through the long years, revisit the shrine beside the Nile, and eventually to cremate itself and repeat the marvelous cycle of its existence. Rays of intolerable light spring from every corner of the car, converging to the point where the flames burst around the nesting Phoenix. In front a group of Egyptian priests perform the ceremonies observed whenever the sacred bird was supposed to be undergoing its fiery regeneration.

Car No. 8—The Dolphins.

Bacchus, or, as the Greeks called him, Dionysus, was a god of wine. Once when asleep by the seashore he was captured by pirates, who hurried him on board their ship and sailed away, intending to sell their victim for a slave. After various experiences, the upshot of which was extremely uncomfortable for the kidnapers, as may be imagined, the captive god liberated himself and found refuge in the sea, where shoals of dolphins had assembled around the vessel, and which now received the deity to bear him on their broad backs safe to land. This is the moment which Rex has represented in this beautiful car. High roll the azure billows, and upon them frolic, not merely the dolphins, but lissome figures of mermaidens, while Bacchus himself, harp in hand, rides triumphant upon the mightiest dolphin of all.

Car No. 9—Briarous.

Thousands of years before the dawn of history, when from Olymphus the gods ruled over the world, there was rebellion against them, and at the head of the insurgents were the huge but courageous Titans. In their peril the gods enlisted Briareus, the son of Uranus and Gaea, who with his brothers routed the giants and saved the authority of Jupiter from the peril that had threatened it. Briareus possessed a hundred arms and fifty heads, and so was able to contend equally even against the huge Titans. Rex shows him at the supreme moment of his career, when with every hand grasping a separate spear he overrides his unwieldly foes, thrusting them down into the sulphurous smoke of Tartarus, while in the background Olympians, surrounded by clouds, stars and rainbows, look on in awe and wonder at the tremendous struggle.

Car No. 10—The Minafaur.

Warriors in splendid dress guard the approaches to an ancient wood. In the foreground smoke the altars dedicated to a bloodthirsty diety. Just beyond the sacred threshold a group of fear-smitten maidens find themselves face to face with a huge and terrifying figure, half man, half ox. Thus Rex represents the old myth of the Minataur, that gristly beast, penned up in a labyrinth in Crete by the vindictive king of Minos. To avenge wronge done his son, Minos made war on Athens, and compelled the Athenians to send every year a tribute of young men and girls, to be devoured by the Minataur. At length Theseus, indignant at the danger to which his friends were thus exposed, went to Crete and slew the monster.

Car No. 11—The Sphinx.

The Sphinx gets its name from a Greek word, meaning the "throttler." It was a figment of Egyptian imagination, invested with the body of a winged lion, and the breast and head of a woman. Here, angry at the crimes of Laius, sent the Sphinx from Ethiopia to Thebes, and there making her home upon a high rock, she intercepted the citizens of the town, or any passing traveler, propounded a riddle to them, and when they failed to answer it aright, flung them headlong to death on the plain below. But eventually Oedipus, the Greek hero, fell into her clutches, and when he gave the right answer to her question, the gristly beast in fury buried herself from the rock and perished miserably. Rex shows us the Sphinx as an Egyptian religious emblem, a serene figure carved in marble guarded by Egyptian priests, and surrounded by the flowers that grow beside the banks of the Nile.

Car No. 12—The Midgard Serpent.

When Thor went to the home of the Asa, and there in a contest of skill and strength lifted the huge old cat almost entirely from the floor, his giant hosts grew pale and trembled, for in the form of that cat the hero was contending with the Midgard serpent, who holds the world in its folds. If Thor had lifted the cat clear of the pavement, the grasp of the serpent upon the globe would have been loosened and chaos would have come. In the beautiful car which bears the name of this fantastic snake we see princes and warriors and all the pomp of the world splendid in the sunshine; but far below, in the depths of earth, the Midgard Serpent clasps the roots of the world.

Car No. 13—The Sea Horses.

Neptune, god of the sea, when he goes forth scorns to use an automobile. He has, instead, a couch shell for chariot and a school of sea horses to draw it. Hippocampus, as these fairy animals were called of old, has the body of a fish, but the head and forelegs of a horse. We may well believe that when the monarch of the ocean has some important business to attend to, he was attended by half a dozen or more attendants, exquisitely dressed, executing fairy music upon wreathed horns, or riding as couriers upon the flourishing sea horses in the divinity's train, just as we behold them in this superb car.

Car No. 14—The Ogre.

From the mythology of the middle ages we get the grim figure of the Ogre, a man of giant stature and brutish instincts, usually with a consuming appetite for human flesh. According to the king, the Ogre makes his home in forests, sometimes, as on this charming car, in a bit of woodland lovely in its bright colors, vines and flowers. From amidst the beautiful and delicate vegetation appears the huge head and gaping mouth of the monster, and his great claw-like hands, reaching hungrily towards the youth and maidens, who, unconscious of nearing danger, frolic in the shade of the blossom-covered thicket.

Car No. 15—The Sea Serpent.

The irridescent car to which Rex has given the name of the sea serpent tells its own story. From the dark blue waves, shot with silver and crested with foam, issue the complex folds of an enormous serpent, covered with scales that flash in the sunshine, its back adorned with fins and singular, hair-like tentacles. In its forearms it carries its young, a small replica of itself. Masses of sea weed invest it in a sort of drapery, while spirits of the deep, some seemingly part human and part fish, and others with all the outward aspect of men and women, disport themselves upon the water, or ride joyously upon the back of the serpent itself. Cautious science hesitates to deny the existence of the sea serpent, in view of the well authenticated reports of seamen who have seen it, and so, perhaps, we ought not to include this particular "freak" among those of fable. Nevertheless some of the legends which are associated with it warrant our doing so.

Car No. 16—The Centaurs.

The haunt of the centaurs was Thessaly. They are described by the poet Pindar as animals with the head and trunks of men, but the body and legs of horses. They were a rude and bestial race, anyhow. When Pirithous was wedded to Hippodamia, daughter of the king of Argos, he made a feast in his house to which he invited his neighbors, including the centaurs of Pelion. But one of the latter, Eurytion, became intoxicated on the good wine copiously supplied the guests and behaved himself so ill to the ladies present that a dreadful conflict arose, in which many of the centaurs were slain and the rest driven from Pelion and compelled to retire to other regions. In this car we behold the wedding feast of Pirithous, who, like his semiferine guests, is decked with garlands of grapes and crowned with chaplets of grape leaves. The car itself is a vast mass of grapes and grape leaves, emblematic of the rich liquor which wrought such confusion in the veins of the hapless Eurytion.

Car No. 17—The Dragon.

Here, again, Rex gives us a splendid picture, the meaning of which calls for no interpretation. The dragon figures in the mythology of almost every people, nearly always as the embodiment of the evil passions that work in the heart of man to his undoing. The serpent represents the smooth, deceptive evil that subtly undermines the good; but the dragon is the furious passion which rushes headlong and openly upon its prey. Here the king has portrayed this great worm, as ancient Saxons termed him, with his fearful neck, flaming mouth and sinuous tail; he rides upon clouds and flames, and with him are imps and other creatures of evil, bearing torches and weapons, spears and similar implements of destruction.

Car No. 18—The Roc.

The king finds the theme of this grandiose car in the Arabian Nights, where, in the story of Sinbad the Sailor, the tale is told of a huge egg and the mighty bird that laid it, the latter so great that Sinbad might fasten himself to its leg and be carried far through the air, without the unconscious host being aware of the passenger. So immense a bird might of course become a menace to tiny things like men, and so in this tableau the carnival artist shows a group of armed men advancing to attack the Roc, which awaits their onset in the midst of a thicket of spiky cactus. The idea of the Roc seems to have been developed in Arabia by untruthful travelers who brought home the leaves of certain varieties of the palm found in other remote parts of the east, which they passed off as feathers of the enormous bird.

Car No. 19—Cerberus.

Dark and strange there rises above this car the roof of Hades, supported in front by columns wreathed with serpents and in the rear by mighty masses of fire and smoke. Here and there amidst the fumes of burning sulphur and the jagged tongues of flame are the forms of priests, guards and imprisoned spirits, richly clad, indeed, but all kept in close confinement by the ghastly dog Cerberus, Pluto's trusted lieutenant, who glares with all his three heads at his hapless prisoners. Cerberus was the offspring of Echidna and Typhon, and hence a brother of Hydra. He it was whom Orpheus lulled to sleep with the music of his lyre, and also that Hercules, in accomplishing the twelfth and last of his labors, dragged from his post.

Car No. 20—The Unicorn.

And now we come to the last, but not the least splendid of the long and sumptuous series of superb cars with which Rex has bodied forth his idea of the "Freaks of Fable." Students tell us that the Greeks got their idea of the fleet-footed horse with the long, twisted horn in the forehead, from much distorted descriptions of the rhinoceros. They had never seen the rhinoceros, and in striving to represent him hit upon the fantastic figure of the unicorn. However, be that as it may, Rex shows us the unicorn here as a marine animal frolicking gaily in the waves, while groups of voyagers, half armed and richly dressed, make their way over the high swelling waves in little boats of unique design. The waves glitter with silver and purple; their tips are crested with snowy foam. Over the sleek bodies of the unicorns the sun casts tremulous lights, turning their colors to hues of celestial beauty. The joyous figures in the tiny ships dance happily, their burnished cuirasses and flowing robes revealing fresh glories with every hilarious movement. And thus the king pageant passes, leaving behind a memory of beauty, poetry and of old romance which none who has seen it will ever forget.

FLOODS IN SOUTHERN INDIANA.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 5.—Rains unprecedented in the observation of the weather bureau here, are making a veritable lake of southwestern Indiana and southeastern Illinois. The fall for the lastthirty-six hours in Evansville has been 8.05 inches and at Equality, Ill., in the same time, a record breaking fall of 10.12 inches. The Saline river, in Illinois, rose thirty-five feet in twenty-four hours. Bridges are floating away, hundreds of thousands of acres of corn submerged and roadways are completely washed out.

Highwaymen Took $6 Away From Him—Another Victim.

Lotuis Heilbroner was held up last night at Fairfield avenue and Main street and relieved of $6 in cash by two highwaymen who skipped before he could get hold of the police. Bob Voltz reported that he was knocked down by two men about 8:30 o'clock last night on South Lafayette street. He had no money and just as he was struck a woman across the street screamed and the fellows skipped before they went through his pockets.

PATRICK H. KANE IS SUMMONED BY DEATH

Pioneer Citizen Succumbs to Heart Failure; Death Was Unexpected.

Patrick H. Kane, pioneer resident of Fort Wayne, retired merchant and former member of the board of public works, died at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at his home, 330 Washington boulevard west. The end came suddenly and unexpectedly, and was due to heart failure. Though in failing health for the past two or three years, Mr. Kane was confined to his bed but a single day. He had been about town on Monday as usual. Tuesday morning he became quite ill and remained in bed during the day. There was no indication of the approaching end, however, until but an hour prior to his death, when the patient began sinking rapidly. News of Mr. Kane's death came as a sudden and most distressing shock to his wide circle of friends.

PATRICK H. KANE,
Pioneer Fort Wayne Citizen Claimed by Death.

Mr. Kane was 70 years of age. He was born in Ireland, May 1, 1840, and came in childhood with his parents to America, the family landing in Quebec and shortly thereafter removing to Buffalo. Here he was educated and received his earlier training in business affairs. After a brief residence in Toledo Mr. Kane came with his brother, the late James M. Kane, to Fort Wayne, and together they established the cutlery and notion business which later grew to immense proportions and which is still among the most prominent commercial enterprises of this city. The firm was James M. Kane & Bro., and thus it continued until 1887, when the interest of P. M. Kane was purchased by his brother and the latter's son, and the junior partner retired from the business.

On Board of Public Works.

Following his retirement from the notion firm Mr. Kane devoted his time to looking after his property interests and during the administration of Mayor H. P. Scherer was a member of the board of public works, serving from May, 1896, to May, 1901; other members of board being Peter Eggeman and J. K. McCracken. He was a democrat in political affiliation, a man of high character who in a residence of half a century in Fort Wayne enjoyed the widest respect and esteem of all who knew him. He was a member of the Cathedral congregation and of the Married Men's sodality of that congregation.

Mr. Kane was united in marriage August 22, 1871, to Miss Anna M. Muhler, of this city, who, with three children, survive. The children are the Misses Julia and Mary Kane, of this city, and Sister Stella, of St. Mary's of the Woods. One sister, Miss Mary Kane, of this city, also survives, the last of a family of eleven brothers and sisters.

Funeral Friday at 8:30 a. m. at the residence and 9 o'clock at the Cathedral, Rev. John R. Quinlan officiating.

STARK.

Nina Margaret Stark, aged six months and twenty days, died at 9 o'clock this morning at the residence of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Stark, 55 Buchanan street, of bronchitis.

SMITH.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, of 1505 Wells street, died this morning of exhaustion. The burial will be tomorrow in Lindenwood.

BERGER.

Miss Frieda Berger, aged 18 years, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Berger, 909 Barr street, died at noon Wednesday of tuberculosis with which she had been ill for several months. Surviving are the parents and the following sisters and brothers: Martha, Catherine and Frank Berger. She was a member of St. Mary's Catholic congregation.

Funeral Saturday forenoon at 9 o'clock.

the banquet room of the Anthony hotel, and by evening a total of one hundred visiting nobles and three hundred local shriners had affixed their names to the records.

The official badge of the mardi gras is a richly beautiful combination of bronze and pearl, the crescent, scimitar and star suspended over a silk ribbon with the tri-colors, red, yellow and green. Inlaid in the crescent are the words, "Fort Wayne." The badges were in much demand, and were issued only upon the card attesting membership.

The magnificent Anthony hotel is in practically complete charge of the Shriners for the day. Inside at the center of the lobby is suspended an immense banner bearing the emblems of the order, and the entire second floor of the hotel is reserved for the imperial officers.

G. R. & I. Brotherhood Men Have Made a Demand.

Grand Rapids, Ind., Oct. 5.—Unless the company accedes to the demands of the enginemen and trainmen, the entire G. R. & I. system will be tied up by a strike. It is understood the trouble grew out of the refusal of the company to grant seniority of service rule in the assignment of men to the different runs. This rule, which is based on the service merit, aims to give the oldest men the best runs. The B. L. E., the O. R. C., the B. L. F. and E. and the B. R. T. have had the matter up with General Manager J. H. Hughart for some months, but failed to reach an amicable agreement. If a strike takes place it will involve 2,900 employes between Mackinac and Richmond.

WORLD'S GREATEST BIBLE COLLECTION

Accessible alike to the student of theology and the man who merely reverences the antique, the library of the General Theological seminary in Chelsea square, New York, houses a collection of Latin Bibles that, in point of numbers, has no equal.

In the fireproof Bible room, on the second floor of the seminary, overlooking the beautiful Chapel of the Good Shepherd, are carefully placed on shelves and in glass cases more than 1,200 different editions of the Bible, in nearly 2,500 volumes. Of these 555 editions are Latin, in 1,053 volumes. Of "polyglot" editions (in more than one language), there are ninety-three, in 500 volumes.

This valuable collection, originating with John Pintard, who bought several important copies, both in the number and importance of the Bibles, inadequate, until the year 1893, when the Copinger collection was announced for sale. The late Dean Eugene A. Hoffman, recognizing its value to the seminary, communicated with the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, and the collection was bought and presented to the seminary by these two men. It was the largest Latin collection in the world, including some very rare Bibles. But there were, necessarily, many important Bibles not contained in it, and Dean Hoffman set himself to repair these omissions and make the collection as nearly complete as possible. He undertook the matter personally, visiting the old book shops of London and the continent, poring over old folios, and making the acquaintance of many old bookworms. The result was the purchase of several extremely valuable editions, chief among which is the Gutenberg Bible, the first book printed with movable metal types, for which he paid $15,000. All the Bibles acquired between 1893 and his death, in 1902, were the gift of Dean Hoffman, and since then his son, Mr. S. V. Hoffman, has continued to make contributions to the collection. There is a representative collection of English Bibles, and a large collection of Greek Testaments, besides copies of the Bible in most of the modern languages, Hebrew and Syriac.

The most interesting of the Bibles is the Gutenberg volume printed at Moguntia between 1450 and 1455 by Johannes Gutenberg. It has always ranked as a masterpiece of art.

The Bible of 1642, the first printed Bible with a date, is also an interesting and beautiful book. It was printed by Fust & Schoeffer at Mainz, and is practically a reprint of the first Bible. Fust was a wealthy goldsmith who assisted Gutenberg with money to carry on his work, and having brought suit against Gutenberf to recover his loan had become possessed of his types and presses. In the early printed Bibles there was no title page, the so-called printer's imprint being placed at the end of the text, usually immediately after the Apocalypse. All the editions of the Vulgate have the prologues of St. Jerome preceding each book or set of books, and very early in the history of printing there was included in some of the Bibles the commentary of Nicolas de Lyra. In these works the text of the Bible is printed in double columns in the middle of each page, the comment being ranged all around it.

From Mainz the art of printing quickly spread through Germany, and to Switzerland, France and Italy, so that before the end of the fifteenth century no fewer than 124 editions of the Bible in Latin alone had been published.

The first Bibles were all in Gothic letter and in folio size, but in 1491 there was published in Basle an octavo edition known as "the poor man's Bible," because its smaller cost brought it within the reach of those not well to do.

Many of the Bibles in the seminary library have beautifully illuminated initial letters and marginal decoration. Others are remarkable for the beauty of the type and paper; others again for the quaint wood cuts; still others as showing the contemporary binding of oak boards covered with leather, with brass bosses and iron studs, and yet others are valuable on account of their former owners. Several have belonged to religious houses, and one, in two ponderous volumes, was formerly the property of a Carthusian monastery. Some Bibles in the collection have the coats of arms of kings and cardinals embossed on the sides of the handsome binding.

The most handsome of the polyglots is the Paris, or Le Jay. It is in ten enormous folio volumes, bound in vellum, and is printed in seven languages, viz., Hebrew, Greek, the Latin of Jerome and the Latin of the Septuagint, Syriac, Samaritan and Chaldaic. Guy Mitchmel le Jay, of Paris, became the patron of the learned men who were to undertake the editing of this great work, and had expended one hundred thousand crowns upon the publication when Cardinal Richelieu offered to reimburse him upon consideration of his own name being affixed to the work instead of that of Le Jay. Failing in his ambitious project, the cardinal began to depreciate the work, and influenced many persons to write against it, with the result that its sale was practically stopped, Le Jay was ruined and many copies were eventually sold as waste paper.

Walton's polyglot, "The Glory of the English Church and Nation," was undertaken by Bryan Walton in the time of the commonwealth, who allowed him to import the paper free of duty. It was, therefore, dedicated to the protector, but the restoration took place before the work was finished and Walton cancelled some of the leaves and made great alterations in it to conform it to the times. It is in Hebrew, Samaritan, Chaldaic, Arabic, Ethiopian, Persian and the Latin of the Vulgate.

The English Bibles include a copy of Coverdale's, the first complete English translation; the Great Bible, sometimes called Cranmer's, or Cromwell's Bible; "Mathew's Bible," translated by John Rogers; several copies of the Geneva Bible, sometimes called the "Breeches Bible," from the peculiar reading of Genesis 3:7; the Rhemes and Douway Bible; several copies of the Bishops' Bible, a translation by a body of bishops to counteract the ultra Protestant Geneva Bible, and the first edition of the authorized, or "King James' Bible," of 1611. There are also the New Testaments of Tyndall, 1536, and of Coverdale, of the same date, and that "Englished" by Tomson.

Notable among the recent additions to the collection is a Latin edition printed at Lyons in 1549, evidently used as an "Album Amicorum" by a friend of the reformers of Melanchthon, Alexandre Ales, Paul Eber and Forster. The inscription in Melanchthon's hand fills four pages.

The so-called "Macklin Bible" is another addition. It is one of the most notable English editions ever printed. It was issued at London in 1800 in six folio volumes and contains many plates and engravings of very beautiful execution.

A copy of what is called the first Socinian or Unitarian Bible is a third recent addition. It is in Polish and was printed at Pinczow, in Lithuania.

WOMEN OF THE CIVIL SERVICE

(Philadelphia North American.)

When the announcement was made recently through the daily papers that the civil service commission had issued a decree debarring women from a certain stenographic examination, an expression of almost incredulous amazement spread through the ranks of the women workers of the country, centering particularly in the midst of those in government employ at Washington.

That the chairman of the commission should immediately hasten to stamp the rumors of discrimination as false and to repudiate on the part of the commission any desire of authority to debar women workers from the public service was but natural, and it was characteristic of the diplomatic gentleman who heads the commission that he should make his denial still more emphatic by declaring that "the commission made no statement that would give any color to any such assertion."

Nevertheless, there are widespread changes in progress, and there seems no doubt that when heads of departments need new blood they take men whenever they can get them.

It has never been the policy of the commission to take the public into its confidence in regard to its methods of running public affairs, and the one best bet in this connection is that the chairman's assertion was literally true. The rumors of discrimination did not come from the commission.

The attitude of the commission toward the public has always been one of dignified and rather gloomy reserve, an attitude of mind and manner extending throughout the department and governing the behavior of every employe in the big red building opposite the land office. Even the elevator boy wears an air of impenetrable reserve, and his manner seems to hint that though he has a number of valuable secrets up his sleeve, his lips are sealed.

The courtesy of everyone connected with the establishment is marked, but so chilling and lacking in cordiality that it seems like a breath from the catacombs on the tomb of Marie Antoinette.

Reticence is the order of the department. The clerks seen flitting about the gloomy corridors have all apparently taken the vow of silence, and gentlemen holding responsible positions in the more important offices have been known to turn a deep vivid orange from suppressed information.

The young woman in the application division who hands out application forms does so with an air of secrecy and a glance of her dark eyes which seems to say, "This is between you and I; it must positively go no no further."

No one has ever been able to explain the reason for all this mystery and for the heavy and funeral gloom which pervades the department. It is traditional.

Women Never Worked Before.

The public service has always appealed to men and women of a class not accustomed to work for their living and not familiar with the methods of business routine, and it is hinted that the very qualities that have raised the tone of the service have often seriously hampered its workings. A very proportion of government employes have never worked before, and this is especially true of the women employes.

While it may be reasonable to expect that expert women stenographers will always be in demand in the public service as well as elsewhere in the business world, there seems to be a growing impression in the minds of a good many people in touch with public affairs that there is some truth in the rumor that more male clerks are to be employed.

It has been claimed that the male employe, no matter how prominent his former position, has been found more adaptable to conditions and more valuable because of his knowledge of business routine and detail. The female clerk of the same type, it is said, is nearly always lacking in the three most important business essentials, ability, training and experience.

A large number of women, in seeking to enter the service, have but one object in view—to get into a pleasant position paying a good salary and carrying with it the assurance of a reasonably long tenure of service. Their ambition goes no further than to pass the examination, be placed on the eligible list and in the course of time appointed.

It has been suggested that the Washington departmental clerk is a type peculiar to the district and not to be met with elsewhere in the universe. This suggestion might be emphasized with reference to the woman clerk. Here is a type so distinct that once closely observed it is always easily recognized. It is a type, needless to say, in which feminity is uppermost, and it is curious to see how quickly the newcomers into the service take on the prevailing characteristics.

They Are a Distinct Type.

From all parts of the country they come, crisp, breezy westerners, prim, sedate New England ladies, high browed, cultured Bostonians and languid, soft voiced southerners. Dissimilar as they are in appearance, views and bringing up, they almost invariably show a chameleon like tendency to discard the mannerisms that have marked their local habitataions and take on the colors of the type.

Having a monopoly of the distinctly feminine virtues, it would seem but natural that the woman clerk should have a few of the failings common to her sex. Disgruntled and bilious chiefs whose livers are not in good working order have been heard to declare that, as a rule, the woman clerk is "illogical, unreasonable, easily offended, inclined to fancy distinctions where they are none, and to insist on prerogatives that are unnecessary and out of place."

These critical gentlemen, it should be added, constitute a minority that may be classed as insurgents from the regular ranks. The average official is disposed to be much more kindly in his criticism. With a unanimity that is striking he praises the woman clerk's ability and general excellence, but does not hestate to explain that he regards the male clerk as more reliable and more easily managed.

What is more significant, in seven cases out of ten, he will select the name of a man from the three names submitted for his approval when wishing to fill a vacancy.

A business meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the West Jefferson Street Church of Christ was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Meyers, of Cottage avenue, last evening. A social hour followed the business.

NO BUILDING THERE TO START HIS SALOON

Has Only Vacant Piece of Ground But Describes House.

When the hearing on the remonstrance filed against John W. Durnell, who wants to conduct a saloon on the Illinois road near the old "bootjack" stand, came up for hearing in the commissioners' court today it was discovered that, although he described a two-story frame building as one in which he will open his emporium, none has been erected and there is nothing on the ground set out in the application.

He had a contractor in court to show that he has given out his contract and expects to put up the building when he gets his license and the matter was argued at some length. The remonstrance stated that he did not want the license for himself but for another party and that he had not lived in the township long enough. No decision had been reached this afternoon.

Wouldn't Keep House.

Charles E. Munson says in a divorce complaint filed against Susanne Munson that she would not keep house properly, called him bad names in the presence of their four children and taught all of them to use bad language.

He says she abandoned her family on August 10 and that he has to look after the children, the youngest of whom is a year old and the oldest eight. It is also charged that she stayed away from home for weeks at a time, refused to cook meals and whipped and abused the four little ones. Fred Shoaff filed the suit.

Fondness for Bartender.

Jacob W. Coleman, whose wife sued him several weeks ago for a divorce filed a cross-complaint in the superior court today through Colerick and Hogan in which he says that she is too fond of bartenders. She became enamored of one, he charges, and spent nights and days with him for a year and then she found another that suited her better and finally picked up a third one.

He says that he and the members of the family endeavored to persuade her to give up her affinities as they came along but she told them it was none of their business and said she would do as she liked about the matter.

Settlement is Reached.

Suit was instituted by Marie Seidel against Charles J. Smith in the superior court today as part of a compromise under which she was paid damages for personal injuries sustained when Smith's automobile was overturned near the city on Sept. 8, 1909. The trustee of Jackson township was killed at the time.

Marie Seidel was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Smith on a trip to Fort Wayne and she alleges that on the return home the machine was driven recklessly and got beyond the control of the owner. Her face was disfigured and she was injured otherwise. Thomas and Townsend filed the suit.

Divorce is Granted.

Mrs. Ella May Sweet has secured a divorce from Charles Sweet on the charge that he neglected his family and remained in a drunken stupor for weeks at a time. She also charges that he struck her and she was given the custody of their four children. McAdams and Hartzell represented her.

WOMAN WRITER BOOZE FIGHTER

Margaret Horton Potter Black Sued for Divorce.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Mrs. Margaret Horton Potter Black, who as Margaret Horton Potter, gained a national reputation as the author of sensational fiction, dealing with society is charged with habitual drunkenness in a bill for divorce filed by her husband, John D. Black, in the circuit court today. Mr. Black, who is a lawyer, is a son of General John C. Black, former commander-in-chief of the Grand Army.

Mrs. Black was adjudged mentally incompetent at a judicial hearing last March. She is 29 years of age and a daughter of the late millionaire steel manufacturer, Orrin W. Potter, and is the author of nine novels.

This the Time to Plant Bulbs for Spring Blossoms

Bye Selecting Different Places in Garden Succession of Flowers May Be Assured.

Provident women who love their flowers and rave over bulbs of tulips, hyacinths and jonquils from the season before, should be planning to get them into the ground now for early blooming next spring. If the sun should be hot enough to cause them to sprout this autumn, no harm will be done. But "growing weather," save in the south, pretty well gone by, and there is little likelihood of anything planted now coming above the surface this autumn.

By selecting different places in a garden the bloom of early bulb plants may be so regulated that they will form a succession and therefore last longer. A woman who puts in some against a stone wall with a southern exposure has blossoms three weeks before those planted at the same time against the plazza of the western side of the house. This is because the stones hold the sun's warmth, reflecting it into the soil and acting to force the growth. Others, planted as a border in a large bed of ragossa roses, are also late bloomers, as they re partly shielded from the sun. In another part of the place the stone foundation of the house comes up two feet above ground. Against it, with a southern exposure, a narrow bed has been made, and this is gay with two crops of blooms, the first planted in the fall, coming up early; the second crop coming from bulbs planted very early in the spring.

It is not necessary, before planting bulbs, to stripethem entirely of their thin paper covering, but the greater part of it is to be removed, taking care not to injure the top where the new shoot will put out. There is a general rule that bulbs shall be planted double their depth, but this depends somewhat upon climate, and in that section of the country where the ground freezes hard, they may safely be put in deeper.

A sharp pointed stick big enough to make a hole that will take the bulb comfortably will work more quickly and more satisfactorily than a trowel. The hole should be made to round a little at the bottom, that the bulb should be settled on soil and not have a cavity beneath.

Such a crevice will fill with soil of its own accord afterward, but time will be lost. That the bulbs mad have no chance of being winter killed, it is well to cover them with plenty of leaves and boughs, removing the cover after the hard cold winter has passed.

Mrs. Rufus P. Williams is the chairman of the department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs which has charge of the work of fighting tuberculosis. Four years ago when the work was begun there were only about thirty women's clubs engaged in the fight. Today more than two thousand women's clubs are taking special interest in the fight and one million women are actively working for the extinction of the disease. More than $500,000 has been raised annually by them to be used in the fight.

The granite industry in Finland has developed much of late and, according to a consular report, there are still great possibilities for further extension of this trade and export, the grand duchy being richer in stone, especially granite, than most other European countries. Much attention will probably be paid in the near future to the output of small stone, which can be used in the concrete industry, which is coming more and more to the fore. The exports increased considerably in 1909, and on the whole there are good prospects for the future of this trade.

NEW FIELD FOR WOMEN

(New York Herald.)

Elizabeth and her German garden have been responsible for a tremendous enthusiasm for cottage gardening and its disciples have made barren wastes bloom in almost tropical fashion and turned neglected areas into fruitful garden spots, so that for a girl today not to have her own flower garden is to argue herself quite behind the times, while her sisters in large numbers have turned to bucolic pursuits and taken up farming or the raising of fruits and flowers on a more or less extended scale.

It has opened up a new field for a girl's energies and affords not only a pastime, but frequently a means of livelihood, should the occasion of arning a living arise. One phase of the horicultural craze which is tending more and more to the beautification of the American home is that of landscape gardening or landscape architecture, as it is more technically called when worked out along scientific lines.

Landscape gardening is a study that any girl can take up with pleasure and profit, for it not only includes a study of plants and flowers, but of many other branches which are more or less closely allied and which, even though not gone into deeply, must still prove of a distinctly educational value.

Landscape architecture, the principles of it, is a study that has been guarded carefully from the lay mind by the majority of the women who have taken it up, and most of them will tell you that it is for the reason that it is such a tremendous subject that no girl could take it up superficially without doing injury to the profession. And undoubtedly taken in its biggst sense it is a subject of tremendous importance, in that it not only presupposes a study of architecture, but one must be familiar with engineering and hydraulics, the construction of fountains and all under ground work, with their attendant details.

To give some idea of the extent of the study from the scientific side it might be said that the course in Boston is seven years, but in spite of that fact many students are women.

Well Known Women Gardeners.

There are three well known women landscape architects in New York who have taken practical courses and are practicing their profession within a radius of 100 miles of the city.

Miss Grace Tabor, who studies in Boston, is the author of some very charming landscape garden schemes not far from the city. Her own summer home at New Dorp is in process of evolution at her hands, and though only two years has been spent in treating the grounds, the place is gradually evidencing the care put upon it. More recently Miss Tabor has taken to writing on the subject and has been the woman who has put the study comprehensively before the reading public.

Miss Beatrice Jones has laid out some of Newport's most charming estates, and Miss Marian Coffin is another woman who is working along the same lines.

To indicate the extent of the approval placed by man on the work of women landscape architects the experience of one woman in the west is interesting. One of the largest western railroads employs the services of an expert woman landscape architect by the year to lay out the plots about the stations and at the big railroad terminals. She has had placed at her disposal a private car, which she makes use of the entire time traveling along the line and turning waste places into garden spots.

False Impression Prevails.

It is the general impression here in America that one can't have a garden worthy the name unless one has an acre of land at least, but in England, where nearly every home boasts of a small plot inclosed in stone walls, are illustrated charmingly the possibilities of small grounds.

As yet, according to one prominent landscape architect, people in general are not convinced that they need this sort of cultivation of their grounds. It is still a luxury. More than that, every one has unbounded confidence in his own ability to lay out a garden. In fact, nearly all architects have constituted themselves landscape architects and that frequently accounts for the very stereotyped application of shrubbery and flowers.

"The Garden That I Love," by Alfred Austen, is recommended for anyone interested in this line of work. It is a charming book for any garden lover, whether a novice or professional, to read and gives the real spirit that should pervade the formal garden. Then there are scores of other more recently published books which are at once practical and delightful.

A girl could begin studying the botanical end of it. It would make a fascinating study for the summer months or for the long winter evenings at home. She could make a little study of architecture, sufficient to know the sort of garden to be used with a certain type of house. Let her learn all the best examples of formal gardens, studying all details, why certain things are done and why others should not be done.

A bit of wisdom borrowed from William Morris and applied to landscape architecture is this: "Don't use anything in a garden that there is no use for."

Carlyle had an inveterate hatred for Darwinism, which he described as the "gorilla damnification of humanity." Leonard Huxley, in his life of his father, recalls an incident that happened shortly before Carlyle's death. "My father," he writes, "saw him walking slowly and alone down the opposite side of the street, and, touched by his solitary appearance, crossed over and spoke to him. The old man looked at him, and merely remarked, 'You're Huxley, aren't you—the man that says we are all descended from the monkeys?' went on his way."

The weekly prayer meeting at Plymouth church tonight has been postponed until tomorrow evening at 7:45.

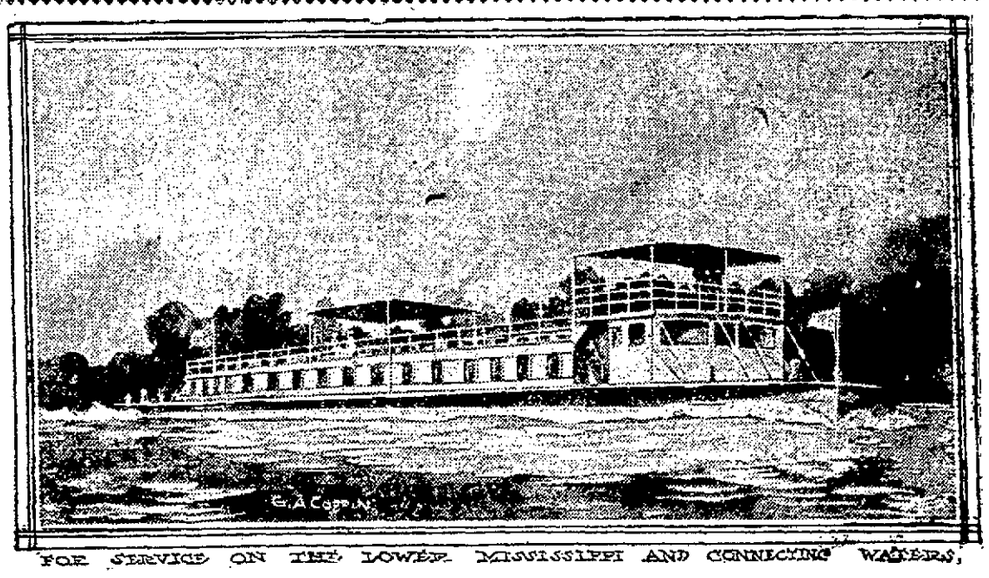
A HOUSEBOAT TO PLY THE GREAT FATHER OF WATERS.



FOR SERVICE ON THE LOWER MISSISSIPPI AND CONNECTING WATERS.

The many bayous and connecting waters of the lower Mississippi river and many of its smaller and shoaler tributaries are a new and almost unknown field in the yachting world, and the conditions surrounding the navigation of these waters require a craft differing very materially from the convention yacht found in northern and eastern waters.

Some of the rivers of the west and southwest have been known to shift their channel several hundred yards in one night, so that a boat comfortably anchored at night may find itself high and dry and several hundred feet from the water's edge before morning, requiring skids and rollers to bring her back to her native element.

A western yachtsman, who has had some experience in these comparatively unknown waters, has decided to have built for him a vessel especially adapted to meet these requirements and has commissioned a firm to work out the various details.

THE SHOP AND RAIL NEWS

INSPECTING THE PENNSYLVANIA

Gen. Mgr. Peck and Staff Out on Three Big Trains.

NOTING TRACK CONDITIONS

Will Go Over Northwest and Southwest Systems.

General Manager G. L. Peck, with his staff and the division officers who comprise the inspectors' committee, as well as all of the road supervisors and maintenance of way officials of the Pennsylvania, passed through the city between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning on the annual inspection of the tracks which go to make up the Northwest and the Southwest systems. They have three trains, each headed by an observation car which accommodates about fifty people, and they ran ten minutes apart. The party stopped over night at Upper Sandusky and will stop tonight at some little place a short distance from Chicago on the Panhandle lines. Superintendent J. B. McKim, Division Engineer F. M. Graham and Assistant Division Engineer A. S. Bland, represent the Western division on the board of inspectors. Other Fort Wayne men with the party are Motive Power Supt. T. W. Demarest and Assistant Engineer of Motive Power O. P. Reese, who remain with the general manager during the entire trip; and Trainmaster J. F. Patterson, Assistant Trainmaster Clarence E. Hamilton, Road Foreman of Engines C. R. Colmey and Assistant Road Foreman R. J. Lyons, who are going over the Western division as pilots. The train crews are from the Eastern division of the Pennsylvania. The party did not stop in Fort Wayne.

HAD HIS JAW BROKEN.

Wheel Roller Victim of Thugs Last Night.

As R. Volz, the wheel roller at the Pennsylvania car machine shop, was walking on Lafayette street, near Waltemath's grocery, at 8 o'clock last evening, he received a terrific blow with a cudgel on the face by one of two young men he met at that point. The blow knocked Mr. Volz down and fractured his jaw. He does not know the men nor can he account for the attack. Just at that time some ladies and a gentleman came in view from around the corner and the assailants of Mr. Volz ran away. Their object was probably robbery, but fear of detection prevented it. Mr. Volz was unable to report for work this morning on account of his injuries.

ENGINE AND CARS DERAILED.

Pennsylvania Train No. 8 in Accident Last Night.

Wet and slippery rails were responsible for an accident at the junction of the Pennsylvania and the Lake Erie and Western roads at 7:30 o'clock last night. The unfortunate train was the eastbound passenger No. 8. A Lake Erie and Western train had just passed over the Pennsylvania crossing when the passenger train appeared on the scene and the man in the tower had not thrown the target giving the latter the right of way. As stated the track was slippery and, although No. 8 was not moving fast, the engineer was unable to stop it and the engine, a baggage car, a mail car, the smoking car and the front trucks of a coach left the rails. The engine and two of the cars were carcened, but did not turn completely over, but the eastbound track was blocked several hours by the accident. Bert Young, the fireman, with Engineer James Burns in the cab, was slightly scratched and bruised about the face, but no others were hurt. The engine was No. 7512, one of the big K-2 type of passenger locomotives recently put in service, and it was considerably damaged. The train was delayed two hours.

The Bowser bowling team managers announce the following prizes for the series of contests during the coming season: Twenty cents to each team for each game won, settlement to be made at the end of the season, the total amount averaging over $50 in cash; $2 for the highest individual score of one game; $2 for highest individual score of three games in one night; $1.50 for highest average of season for one player playing two-thirds or more games scheduled; $5 for highest team score; $7.50 for highest team score of three games in one night, the total prizes amounting to $75.

Three young men stopped Fred W. Mennewisch, the well known machinist at the Pennsylvania shops Monday night, in front of his house, and asked for a match, and as he was about to accommodate them one of the fellows demanded him to hold up his hands, while the others prepared to search his pockets. Instead of obeying the command, Mr. Mennewisch backed up to the door of his home, which was opened by Mrs. Mennewisch, who handed her husband a revolver. At this the highwaymen took to their heels. Mr. Mennewisch believes he can identify them and is keeping a sharp watch.

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 5.—Many cable messages from Argentina today were that contrary to yesterday's advices crop prospects were better than for the previous year, although rain was much needed in two provinces. In consequence the market here after an initial advance turned easier. According to one dispatch the west and south parts of Argentine were in excellent condition and the north fair, notwithstanding reports yesterday that the crops as a whole had suffered 25 per cent. from drouth.

Opening prices were ¼c higher to ⅛@¼c lower with December at 97¼c to 97⅜c, a loss of a shade to ⅛@¼c. There was an advance to 97⅝c and then a fall to 97⅛c.

Corn started firm but became suddenly weak on attempts to put out anew short sales that had been covered yesterday. December opened ⅛@½c to ⅜@½c up at 50¼c to 50½c but sank to 49⅜c.

Oats at the outset were firm but soon followed corn downward. December opened a shade to ⅛@⅜c higher at 33¼ to 33⅜c and receded to 32⅜c.

An advance in provisions resulted from rising prices for hogs. First sales were a shade to 7½c higher with January at $17.65 for pork, $10.55 for lard and $9.37½ for ribs.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, Oct. 5.—Only a feeble movement of prices resulted from the opening dealing in stocks today which were small, but which embraced a large number of different issues. The changes were very much mixed although narrow, a rise in Republic Steel and Western Union of ⅝ and in Northern Pacific 6⅝ measuring the maximum.

Important movements were confined to the specialties which have been prominent this week, fluctuations in the standard stocks being narrow and uncertain. Union Pacific and Reading and other leading stocks were a trifle below yesterday's close. Western Union rose 2½, Westinghouse Electric 2 and Kansas and Texas, Lake Erie and Western Preferred, Colorado Fuel and National Lead 1. Sloss Sheffield Steel sagged 2¼.

The course of stocks showed some conflicting factors at work. The absence of ill effects from the revolution in Portugal was negatively favorable. Some doubts were felt over the resources of the money market. Specialties were marked up but active market leaders were supplied in sufficient quantities to keep down prices. National Lead rose 2, American Agricultural Chemical and American Cotton Oil 1½, Philadelphia Company 1¾ and Texas and Pacific, American Steel Foundry, Great Northern Ore Certificates and Virginia Carolina Chemical 1. Prices were declining at noon. Union Pacific Reading and St. Paul lost 1 to 1¼ and Delaware and Hudson 1⅜. Bonds were firm.

The weakness shown by some of the leading stocks furthered the downward movement. Carolina Chemical Preferred lost two points, National Biscuit 1½. Toledo, St. Louis and Western 1¼ and Northwestern Illinois Central, Amalgamated Copper, Louisville and Nashville and United States Steel 1.

Prices sagged steadily, there being no evidence of concerted support. Sloss Sheffield Steel broke 5¼, Union Pacific 2, Wisconsin Central and Allis Chalmers Preferred 1¾, Reading 1⅝, General Electric 1½ and Southern Pacific, New York Central, American Smelting and American Sugar 1.

The market closed weak and moderately active. Prices hovered about the low point without any vigorous rallying power. Northern Pacific, Great Northern Preferred, Atchison, Anaconda, Chesapeake and Ohio and Atlantic Coast Line declined 1. St. Paul 1¾, Southern Pacific and Amalgamated Copper 1½ and Reading 2. The decline was renewed in the last 15 minutes.

FREIGHT ADVANCE SUSPENDED.

Washington, Oct. 5.—General advances in freight rates between New Orleans and points north, west and east which were to have become effective on November 1, have been suspended by the inter-state commerce commission, pending an inquiry into the reasonableness and propriety of the increase. By the order of the commission the tariffs are suspended for 120 days from November 12. Meantime, it is the intention of the commission to hold hearings on the proposed advances but no dates for the hearing have been fixed.

LABOR INSPECTOR

Commends Postum Plant.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 5.—The pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., of Battle Creek, Mich., which are visited by from 15,000 to 12,000 tourists annually, entertained an unexpected visitor the other day in the person of Sylvester Greusel, Michigan State Factory Inspector.

With practiced and unsparing eye this state official investigated the great group of factory buildings where Postum Cereal, Grape-Nuts and Post Toasties are manufactured. The result of his visit was shown by the following special report which he made to the Michigan State Labor Commission.

Mr. Richard Fletcher, Commissioner of Labor and Statistics, Lansing, Mich.—Dear Sir: I have this day, (Sept. 20, 1910.) carefully inspected every department of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., and I think they are entitled to an especially complimentary report for the following reasons:

FIRST. All the mechanical appliances of this splendid factory are in perfect condition — everything safeguarded.

SECOND. The sanitary conditions are of the best. Everything is furnished employes—fresh water, washrooms, dressing and toilet rooms.

THIRD. With the large number of persons employed in the breakfast-food department, there have been no accidents.

FOURTH. I find the statistics of the wages paid men and women are the highest I have found in any factory I have inspected in Michigan.

FIFTH. They do not employ any child labor under 16 years of age.

IT IS A MODEL INSTITUTION IN EVERY RESPECT.

Yours respectfully,
(Signed) Sylvester Greusel, State Inspector.

VULGAR AMERICANS ABROAD.

A good many of us know charming Americans and are prepared to defend the nation from the attacks of people who don't know. But there's a type of American woman who is "beyond the beyond." This writer saw three of that kind the other day. They came into the choir of Canterbury cathedral during morning service, guide-book in hand. They took no heed of the kneeling congregation or of the litany, but stared about them as though they were in a circus. When a verger, with amazing politeness and self-control, firmly conducted them to seats, one saw a surprised air of protest and heard—the American accent. It is inconceivable that people of any other nation could behave lie that. Even the most vulgar Englishman abroad is not quite so bad.—London Chronicle.

COLUMBIA GETS THE HOOK FOR PROF. H. T. PECK

Amorous Educator is Put on Canned List by Big College.

New York, Oct. 5.—Professor Harry Thurston Peck was dismissed yesterday from the faculty of Columbia university. The board of trustees passed resolutions at the secret meeting yesterday terminating his relations with the university as Anthon professor of Latin. He announced at once that he would fight to hold his chair.

Following the four-hour debate of the trustees yesterday a set of resolutions dismissing Professor Peck and signed by John B. Pine, one of the trustees, was sent to the professor at Columbia yesterday.

Though Professor Peck, according to the resolution, is dismissed at once, his salary of $5,000 will continue until the end of the academy year. The move to oust Professor Peck from the faculty began some months ago, when Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, requested the Latin professor's resignation. Professor Peck refused and loosed a few remarks about writing President Butler's Latin addresses for him. The university president acknowledged this promptly, but said it had no bearing on Professor Peck's uncertain tenure of office.

Follows Woman's Suit.

Dr. Butler made his demand for a resignation after Miss Esther Quinn, of Boston, had sued Professor Peck for $50,000 heart balm in a breach of promise suit as yet to be tried in the supreme court. Miss Quinn gave out a few letters, which, she said, were received from Peck.

On receipt of the resolutions Professor Peck sent the trustees of the university a letter, apparently prepared by his attorney, in which he said:

"I regard this action on your part as illegal and in violation of my contract with Columbia university. Every professor in that university holds a contractual relation with it which cannot be terminated at the pleasure of the trustees or of the professor himself. I hold myself ready and am willing and hereby offer to carry out all the terms of my agreement with the above institution. Inasmuch as you are acting in violation of the letter and spirit of the university charter and of my agreement with this institution, I insist on your carrying out your contract with me and that you respect my contractual relations with the university."

Claims Verbal Contract.

Several years ago the salary of a professorship at Columbia was cut from $7,500 to $5,000 a year. The university, according to report, explained the cut by stating that thereafter a professor who had arrived at the age of 55 could retire at a life pension of $2,500.

Professor Peck holds this provision inaugurated by the university as a verbal contract to continue its professors in its employ until they have arrived at the age which will enable them to recover the money which they lost when their salaries were cut and the pension project was held out as a compensation.

It is on these grounds, it is understood, though he refused to confirm the belief, that he will institute legal proceedings against the university to force it to comply with the verbal contract as he understands it.

The resolution made no charges against the professor. The trustees merely said that as he had been appointed, like all professors, at the pleasure of the trustees, it was within their power to remove him at their pleasure.

Professor Peck has been in the university faculty for twenty-eight years, twenty-two of which he held a professorship. He was popular among the students.
